HIJACKER, AIDES INDICTED BY JURY IN RACKET PROBE

Six Counts Returned Against Downs, Includ- ing Threat to Radio Man; Crime 'Combine' Fought

The full force of the Fulton county grand jury was turned yesterday upon the hijacking and "protective" racket in Atlanta as six indictments were brought out against Hugh Downs, admitted hijacker, and two of his associates who assisted him in his alleged "protective" business.

The grand jury lost no time in acting upon bills placed before them yesterday morning. Solicitor General John A. Boykin conducted the morning session, in which four bills were brought out jointly indicting Downs, Hoyt Lampkin and Hobart McEachern.

Two more indictments charging Downs with pointing a pistol at Mike de la Torre, radio service man, September 1, and also with carrying a pistol without a license, were brought out shortly after the grand jury reconvened after lunch with Assistant Solicitor E. E. Andrews conducting the investigations.

The three were jointly indicted on one bill for assault with in-

AFL REBUFS CIO ON NEW PROPOSAL, OFFERS ITS TERMS

Federation Rejects Plan for 20-Man Committee,
Suggests Rival Name
Group To Confer With Standing Peace Body.

GREEN CONFIDENT CIO WILL ACCEDE

Proposal Stipulates That
Conferees Must Meet
Only Without Previous Commitment on Policy.

By the Associated Press.

The ranks of American labor remained divided last night as the American Federation of Labor rejected a proposal from its rival, the Committee for Industrial Organization, to meet and talk peace.

Both sides were willing to talk about an armistice—but only under conditions they considered necessary to protect their interests.

The peace plan offered by the followers of John L. Lewis brought from the executive council of the AFL, meeting at the close of the federation's convention in Denver, the assertion it was "a well-designed attempt to mislead the public and confuse the issue."

AFL 'Ready'

The AFL professed, however, a readiness to settle major matters in dispute for the purpose of "uniting labor under the banner of the AFL."

CIO delegates, closing a strategy session at Atlantic City, offered to send a 10-man committee to meet with a federation group of equal size at Washington Oct. 25.

AFL leaders, however, made it clear they regarded with suspicion the stipulation that the conference should be held under the same conditions that were offered in the proposal rejected by the AFL.

The AFL terms were that the CIO send a committee of any number into a conference room with the AFL's standing peace committee of three to make a settlement "without prior commitments, stipulations or conditions."

If necessary, they said, the size of the AFL committee could be enlarged.

The CIO's proposal was its second.

2 MORE QUALIFIED FOR COUNTY RACE

Another Possible Candidate Withdraws; New Entrants in South Side.

Fulton county political aspirants to the vacancy on the county commission yesterday were increased to six, as T. M. Middlebrook and R. H. Everett, both from the south side of the county, officially qualified as candidates in the county ordinary's office.

Meanwhile, the list of "potential" candidates narrowed down as Deputy Sheriff Al C. Peacock, pastor of Grant Park Christian church, said he would not run.

Previously talked as a definite candidate, rumor yesterday was that he was withdrawing in favor of Edgar Craighead, already officially qualified. Others who have qualified include Dr. C. W. Childs, Bankhead highway pharmacist; C. O. Johnson, Atlanta attorney; and Troy G. Chastain, former county agent.

Middlebrook, East Point merchant, lives on the Roosevelt highway near Red Oak, while Everett, Atlanta businessman, lives in the Cascade Heights section of the county.

More than half a dozen men talked as strong "possibilities" may qualify before the registration deadline, October 23. There is no entry fee and when election time comes up November 9 a full ballot

SHANGHAI (Saturday), Oct. 16.—Veteran campaigners of the old Chinese "Red army"—now the eighth route army—aided by squadrons of mysterious new airplanes, today appeared to have stemmed the Japanese drive in the northwest.

The Japanese military spokesman here admitted General Juichi Terachi's Shansi campaign had been "halted" and that the Japanese commanders had called for reinforcements.

The announcement came during the last two days on the Shanghai front—in which both sides claimed important gains.

Lines Exhausted.
It appeared to neutral observers, however, that the rival lines had hammered each other into exhaustion with neither obtaining any new advantage.

The Japanese northern forces which split off from the columns that penetrated deep into Suiyuan and captured Kweihsia, the capital city, have encountered bitterly cold weather, which was partially blamed for their failure to advance.

The spokesmen here said, however, that they had encountered "most stubborn" Chinese resistance, and needed additional men and equipment.

Defense Determined.
The eighth route fighters were entrenched at Hsinking, south of Yuanning, and showed determination to hold fast according to reports from both sides.

The Japanese said the sudden tightening of Chinese resistance was due to General Yen Hsi-shan storing his world-famous collection of "art treasures," reportedly worth 10,000,000 yuan (about $2,850,000), at "Huanpian at the foot

F. D. R. CLARIFIES POLICY ON CHINA

President Indicates U. S. Will Propose That Nine Powers Seek Mediation.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 15.—(P)—President Roosevelt, interpreting for the first time his utterances on foreign affairs, indicated today the United States would propose that the forthcoming nine-power treaty conference seek to mediate Japan's undeclared war on China.

This would be the initial step at the historic meeting soon to be held in Brussels, he in substance told a press conference.

But as to what proposals may follow in event the mediation attempt failed, the President would not venture any predictions. He said this was an "if" question and besides it was utter, sheer guesswork for anyone to try to say now what America's policy would be in the future.

Won't Discuss Stocks.
Discussing domestic affairs with his interviewers, he declined to comment on recent declines on the stock market. But he intimated his messages to the special and regular sessions of congress might touch on this subject.

He said he had no plans for conferences with congressional leaders as yet. As for the patronage controversy which has split the Federal Coal Commission, he suggested, half humorously, that the

They Can Spell and Now Use the Word Braggadocio

These three girls, members of Georgia high school classes, can spell "eleemosynary," "carte-blanc," "braggadocio," and a great many other tongue-twisters with the greatest of ease. Because they did spell these words correctly yesterday at the contest held in the educational building of the Southeastern Fair and Atlanta Centennial, Miss Martha Bledsoe could hold a loving cup and a $50 check, Miss Roslyn Redman, in the middle, could claim a $30 second prize check, and Miss Clem Kell, on the right, could leave Atlanta last night with $20 in her purse. Miss Bledsoe spelled 223 out of 225 words correctly. Miss Redman missed four of the words and Miss Kell missed five.

NEW ENGLAND HIT ON FREIGHT RATES

Duckworth Says Foes Trying To 'Wet Nurse' Industry in the East.

Opposition of New England governors to a movement for lower freight rates in the southeast was termed yesterday by W. H. Duckworth, assistant attorney general of Georgia, as an attempt to "wet nurse New England's industry through artificial barriers."

His statement followed action by several New England Governors, meeting in Boston, in laying plans for a permanent organization to oppose the southeastern campaign for rate reductions.

This action was "an effort to thwart our economic advancement," Duckworth asserted. He added:

"We of the southeast are seeking only that on the matter of freight rates we be treated on the same level and the same basis as New England."

A five-hour spelling battle for the champion student speller of Georgia was ended at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon with Miss Martha Bledsoe, 14-year-old Fairburn high school senior, as the winner.

Miss Bledsoe, a student at Campbell High school, spelled her way past 70 contestants to win the contest, held in the educational building of the Southeastern Fair and Atlanta Centennial. She correctly spelled 223 out of 225 words to her.

She received a loving cup from The Constitution and a $50 check from fair officials.

Wins Second Place.
Second place went to Miss Roslyn Redman, 15, of Jackson High school in Butts county. She spelled correctly all but four of the 225 words given to her. A $30 check was given her.

Third place was taken by Miss Clem Kell, 17, of Maxey's High school in Oglethorpe county. She missed five words of the 225 and received a $20 prize check.

CIRCUS ROBBED OF $3,800 LOOT

Ticket Office Entered by Thief Near Elberton; Inside Job, Police Theory

ELBERTON, Ga., Oct. 15.—Theft of $3,800 from the ticket office of the Wallace Brothers circus last night while the motorized show was en route from Lunenburg, S. C., to Elberton was discovered when the unit arrived here this morning.

Circus officials believed the burglary was committed by a former employee who was fired recently, C. W. Johnson Jr., attaché at the police department, said. Entrance was gained through the bay window probably while the show halted in Greenwood, S. C., last night, Manager Cox, of the circus, told local officers. The money box was not placed in the safe, leading police to believe the thief had inside assistance, Johnson said.

The thief dropped his flashlight, which was sent to Atlanta for possible fingerprints.

Attorney Loses Fight To Re- strict Trial to Case of Elderly Wagner.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15.—(P)—Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn heard Prosecutor Dudley Outcalt demand at her murder trial that she be found "so guilty that the supreme penalty will be assessed."

"This woman killed so many," Outcalt declared, "that there isn't another human being like her on the face of this earth!"

The 31-year-old former German housemaid, charged with the fatal poisoning of Jacob Wagner, 78, showed no change of expression from the impassive mien marking three previous days in court.

She also is charged with the death by poison of George Gsellman, another elderly acquaintance from whom the state contends she obtained money.

LONDON PATIENCE ABOUT EXHAUSTED

Resistance Is Promised
If Rebels' Supporter
Attempts Permanent
Domination of Country.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(P)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden tonight demanded swift and honest action to end the danger that Spain may bring Europe to war.

The foreign secretary made the demand at an obscure political rally in Llandudno, Wales, on the eve of tomorrow's noninterventionist subcommittee meeting in London called to seek agreement on withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain.

Eden declared that Britain and France stood shoulder to shoulder to insure that the nonintervention committee's efforts will be successful and added that any nation which obstructed the committee's work would have to suffer French and British displeasure.

Warning Sounded.

That Britain has not intervened in Spain with soldiers, he said, does not mean that Britain is indifferent to the fate of Spain.

"A clear distinction must be made between nonintervention in what is purely a Spanish affair and nonintervention where British interests are at stake," he said.

The strong advice carried an unmistakable warning to Italy that British patience is "well-nigh" exhausted over "proclaimed intervention."

Eden condemned "glorification of breaches of the (nonintervention) agreement" and indicated Italy will meet resistance if she hopes for permanent domination of Spain.

He echoed Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's recent statement welcoming President Roosevelt's Chicago peace address. He said that Britain will go to a nine-power meeting at Brussels on the Chinese situation prepared to "co-operate heartily with those who go there to work in the spirit" of the declaration by "the President of the most powerful republic in the world."

Italy Condemned.

Indirectly he condemned Italy's declaration that she would not tolerate a Bolshevik Spain.

"We have said more than once that we in this country have no concern with forms of government in foreign states," he asserted. "That is perfectly true and remains true as long as it is the general practice—that is, so long as foreign states as a whole observe this practice."

"But toleration must be general."

MRS. BROOKE TAKES GIRL SCOUTS' HELM AS SESSIONS CLOSE

Kansas City Is Chosen for 1938 Convention of National Group.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 15.—(AP) The National Council of Girl Scouts concluded their convention today with the election of Mrs. Frederick Brooke, of Washington, D. C., as president. She succeeds Mrs. Herbert Hoover, whose term expired.

The wife of the former President of the United States, although not offering for re-election, said, "Don't think that by leaving office I am quitting the Girl Scouts. That I am doing is keeping the nominating committees from becoming too lazy to hunt up new officers." She becomes an honorary vice president. The same honor was conferred on Mrs. Arthur O. Choate, of New York City.

Kansas City was selected for next year's convention, which will be held the third week in October. The delegates voted to continue holding annual conventions instead of returning to the former biennial system.

Elected today were vice presidents nominated and announced yesterday. All elections were unanimous.

Selected for the board of directors were: Members at large, Mrs. Leo Arnold, New York City; Mrs. John C. Smith, East Norwalk, Conn.; Mrs. Frederick Eder, Belmont, Long Island; Mrs. William J. Babington, Macaulay, New York; and Rome, Italy.

Regional directors: Mary Houghton, Springfield, N. Y.; Mrs. E. Swift, Louisville, Ky.; Mrs. J. R. Thomas, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. J. R. Thomas, Kansas City; Mrs. Albert Crosby, Minneapolis; Mrs. J. R. Thomas, Salt Lake City; and Mrs. Harvey Moore, Berkeley, Calif.

Mrs. Brooke, in her first talk to the convention since her election, urged delegates at the final dinner to "help interest all fathers in helping their girls to be Scouts as they have been in encouraging their boys."

She also appealed for more volunteer workers, after reporting more than 70,000 such workers in the organization.

Mrs. Hoover toastmistress. Mrs. Hoover was toastmistress at the dinner, with Mrs. A. C. Nichols, Savannah girl scout commissioner, presiding. The dinner closed the convention.

At the morning session today, Mrs. Paul Rittenhouse, national director, reported scout membership had reached a record enrollment of almost 440,000. Sales of equipment in the last six months were greater than for any other comparative period, she reported.

Southeastern Gains. Reporting on Girl Scouting activities in Georgia, Florida, and North and South Carolina, Mrs. Russell Belman, of Atlanta, said scouts in the four states numbered 13,197, an increase of 28 per cent since the first of the year.

Brownie membership had increased 80 per cent to 1,293 in the same region, she said.

She pledged to continue her work in Girl Scouting after leaving the presidency of the organization, Mrs. Herbert Hoover gave the final accounting of her residence in the office.

Miss Glass Speaks. Miss Meta Glass, president of Sweetbrier College, Sweetbrier, Va., speaking at another session today, accused modern educators of permitting their schools to "become confused and cluttered with excellent things that ought to be done elsewhere."

She said that, for example, "Domestic things, such as the way to keep house and to cook, are transient matters which have no place in formal schooling."

"It is not that I question the value of instruction in domestic things, nor of the other informal activities which I say do not belong to the school, but that I question their place in the formal system," she said. LONG-LOST BURGLAR IS CAPTURED IN MACON

MACON, Ga., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Macon's prowler burglar has been captured, Chief of Police Ben T. Watkins announced today.

The man, charged with more than 75 crimes, is listed as E. J. Hamilton, 19, negro, the police department head said.

Hamilton's criminal record, Chief Watkins declared, dates back to his boyhood when he headed the notorious "Butterbeans" gang of negro youths. He has confessed several of the prowler crimes as well as three holdups, police department reports show, and has admitted having knowledge of a great many of the other crimes."

fair competition for New England products, Duckworth said: "A sufficient answer to such contentions is that southern labor is just as efficient and valuable as New England labor and is entitled to conditions that will permit of wages equal to the wages of New England."

The only way to bring southern wages to the level of New England wages, he said, was "to tear down artificial, unfair and unjustified obstacles such as the difference in freight rates which New England seeks to perpetuate and thus keep the south from an opportunity to have a free and natural expansion commensurate with its natural assets."

Canal to St. Louis, Plan 66 Years Ago.

By SIDNEY ROBERTS. Associated Press Staff Writer.

Freight rates, a subject of controversy between north and south, prompted legislators 66 years ago to suggest construction of a continental canal linking St. Louis with the Georgia coast to provide cheaper transportation.

"High rates of freight depress agricultural interests," the Georgia assembly said in a resolution adopted December 13, 1871.

It urged the federal government to build a waterway linking the Mississippi, Tennessee, Coosa and Ocmulgee rivers. The cost in Georgia was estimated at $10,000,000.

Interest Moderate. The interest of the federal government was only moderate and the waterway was never constructed.

But the expression of 1871 touched upon several phases of the problem which has placed 1937 Governors in sectional camps for a fight before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Executives of nine southern states joined last spring in a move to reduce railroad levies they termed "discriminatory."

New England Governors organized at Boston Thursday to oppose changes as a menace to their industrial structure.

Get Better Chance. Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama, said "removal of man-made barriers in the form of unfair rates would give the nation a better chance in seeking world markets."

Governor Francis P. Murphy, of New Hampshire, secretary of the New England conference, said "... must intervene when the efforts of these (southern) states would disrupt seriously the competitive relationships of New England."

The Georgia legislators of 66 years ago estimated a bushel of corn could be shipped from St. Louis to Savannah by the proposed canal for 12 cents a bushel, against prevailing charges of 56 to 72 cents.

Rate Problems Analyzed. Rate problems of the day were analyzed then:

Inadequate means of transportation. The pressure upon present water routes being a great during the limited season between the harvesting of the crops and the closing of navigation exorbitant prices are demanded for freight and the distance, by rail, is so great that transportation to a price that will be a sufficient profit to the farmer and, at the same time, be remunerative to the railroads."

"These evil influences can only be remedied, the agricultural interests of the west fostered and developed, and navigation encouraged by opening some cheaper channel of trade between the Mississippi and the Atlantic ocean," the resolution said.

Distance Too Great. The legislators argued that "the multiplication and consolidation of long lines of railroads could not effect the desired reduction in rates because 'the distance is too great for wheat and corn to be transported at a profit.'"

"A cheap transit can be found for the west through Georgia by the sea by opening the proposed water line," the lawmakers decided, adding "it is 844 miles less from St. Louis, the great center of western trade, to the Georgia Atlantic ports, than to New York by the lakes and Erie canal."

"It is 222 miles less from St. Louis by the proposed line, to the Georgia ports, than to the Gulf of Mexico, by the Mississippi river."

Would Share Equally. In asking federal assistance for construction of the canal, lawmakers said the work "would be enjoyed equally by the eastern and western states of the Union."

The canal, the legislature averred, would have made it possible to transport freight from St. Louis to Savannah for $4.50 per ton.

Further arguments advanced in favor of its construction were: "In case of hostile invasion, it would be invaluable to the government as an interior means of communication by which supplies in large quantities, could be cheaply and safely transported from the west to the east."

Ice Not a Hazard. "It will never be obstructed by ice."

"Upon it no transshipments will be necessary."

"No marine insurance will be needed."

"A barge loading at any point on the Mississippi, or any of its tributaries, can discharge her cargo on board a vessel at Brunswick or Savannah, without in the meantime breaking bulk."

"The two principal seaports of Georgia have harbors that are safe and accessible to sloops (ships), and seagoing steamers of ordinary capacity, at all times, and are ample to accommodate this trade."

FAIRBURN GIRL, 14, CHAMPION SPELLER

70 beginning spellers at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. Although 71 high school youths were supposed to be in attendance, Alice Reid, of Lumpkin county, was too late for the first heat. So was her alternate, Pearl Bruce, and they were barred from the contest.

Walter Cowart, director of finance for the State Board of Education, was the spelling master. He furnished each contestant with a sharp pencil and beaver board pads, then gave the first 100 words.

The first heat ended with the girls leading the boys. Only nine boys remained after the first 100 words were given out, but 25 girls stayed in the competition. Among the boys remaining for the second tests was A. J. Whittaker, 12, of Colquitt, in Miller county.

After 25 harder words—taken from the old blueback speller—were given, all the boys were eliminated and only seven girls remained. They were Mildred Pharr, of Gwinnet; Roslyn Redman, of Butts; Martha Bledsoe, of Fulton; Alpha Robinson, of Thomas; Charlotte Pendley, of Pike; Clem Kell, of Oglethorpe, and Clyde Jackson, of Jefferson.

Two Girls Eliminated. In the next 25 words given out, Miss Jackson and Miss Pendley were eliminated. Miss Jackson did not spell "aqueduct" correctly, leaving out the "c." Miss Pendley forgot to put an "n" in convalescent.

The five remaining contestants fought tenaciously for the lead position. Miss Pharr was eliminated after 25 more words by leaving the "e" of inescapable.

Like athletes who were working for a victory, the remaining four became taut, gazed only at Dr. Cowart as he gave out the next 25 words. Not one of the girls was eliminated in that group of words.

"Well, I'll turn over to the middle of the old blueback and let some hard words get you now," said Dr. Cowart—and he did.

Four Champs Phased. By choosing such words as "judicature," "scurrious," "blasphemous" and "lineament," he phased the four champs. Miss Robinson was eliminated.

Only the three winners remained. They were seniors in their high schools.

What are they going to do with the money and prizes?

"I have $20 already that was given me when I won the Fulton county contest," said the first prize winner, Miss Bledsoe. "I have no idea what I'm going to do with the other $50."

"However, I'm going to put the Constitution cup on the mantelpiece."

"I have a coat, but I'm going to get a better one," Miss Redman, the second prize winner said. "Thirty dollars ought to help me in my shopping."

Will Spend Her $20. Miss Kelly said she's "just going to spend" her $20.

The first 100 words, taken from the seventh grade speller, "stumped" less of the students this year than in any of the three years previous in which the contest has been held, according to Dr. Cowart, who has been spelling master each year. He said two years ago, every one of the contestants failed on the first 100 words.

Dr. Cowart also said that the contest this year was the largest yet held. He pointed out that only 12 contestants took part four years ago and that the match was attended by few spectators. There were hundreds of visitors while the "e" was going on yesterday.

Sponsoring the spelling match besides The Constitution and the Southeastern Fair was the State Board of Education, headed by Dr. M. D. Collins. In attendance were school superintendents from all sections of the state.

BALANCED BUDGET SEEN AS ROOSEVELT'S GOAL

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy, of the Federal Maritime Commission, said after a lengthy conference with President Roosevelt today the latter's primary aim in domestic affairs was a balanced budget.

Kennedy told newsmen he discussed governmental fiscal affairs with the President along with a long range survey of merchant marine problems.

"That really is the thing he wants to do most—balance the budget," he said, adding: "I think he has a very, very good chance of doing it."

He said he discussed maritime

Mrs. Parker, 12, Held in Detention Home

Twelve-year-old Mary Lee Earle Parker plays with her doll at the Detention Home in Little Rock, Ark., apparently unconcerned by her separation from her 49-year-old husband—who has been married six times. Juvenile authorities at Little Rock declare the marriage is null and void under the Arkansas law fixing 14 as the minimum age at which females may marry. labor conditions in "all their aspects" and predicted the commission survey would result in some policy recommendations to the special session of congress regarding federal attempts to build up an adequate merchant marine.

Asked for comment on the stock market drop, Kennedy, who is a former chairman of the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission, said he still disagreed with the administration on the capital gains and undistributed corporate profits taxes.

ROOSEVELT PARLEY ON COTTON DROPPED

B. Frank Wheelchel, congressional representative, of Gainesville, announced yesterday that southern congressmen have called off a plan to see President Roosevelt this month about further help to cotton farmers.

The representative, who asked the congressmen to meet in Washington, said the extra session call made the conference unnecessary. The congressmen apparently are looking to the November 15 special session for a solution to their problems.

FOUR DRAW FINES IN U. S. COURT

Nolo Contenderes Entered by Defendants.

Fines were imposed upon four Georgians yesterday after they had entered pleas of nolo contendere before Judge Rufus C. Foster, of the United States circuit court of appeals.

R. A. Chapman, registrar at Cox College, who was charged with making false representations to the National Youth Administration concerning the number of students at the school, was fined $100. Alex S. Howell, charged with diversion of services of several Works Progress Administration employees, was given a similar fine.

E. M. Bryant, charged with receiving rebates from employees on a school building project, was fined $100, while W. S. Green, Augusta furniture dealer, received a $50 fine on charges of falsifying income tax returns.

standing dogs have been entered in the show and a parade of champions, will be given special attention during the afternoon.

Only registered dogs, which have not won a championship this year will be eligible for top prizes today, and the champions in the parade will be entered solely for exhibit purposes.

It's the one big dog show of the year for the Atlanta Kennel Club, and the one in which every dog which has not won a championship has an equal chance to win a top prize today.

Challenger for Crown. Today's automobile race program, starting at 1 o'clock with the time trials is likely to establish a winner or a chief challenger for the 1937 crown. Schrader, after losing the lead last Saturday in the program which was cut short, came back strong Sunday afternoon and regained his lead. And today he faces his strongest competition of the year, with Collins in a spot to jump into the lead with a couple of fine races.

A special fireworks program, more elaborate than any of those earlier in the week will be staged at 9 o'clock. There will be 16 scenes on display with a modern scene of Atlanta with the streamlined train, automobile and airplanes, and the Battle of Atlanta, outstanding.

The Century of Progress will be another big feature of the fireworks scenes.

The pyrotechnics will be fired immediately after the close of the eight free acts in front of the grandstand.

Should the weather be favorable today, all attendance records for the Southeastern fair are likely to be broken. Already the attendance has far exceeded expectations, despite two cold rainy days in which automobile races were featured, but had to be postponed.

Daylight Shift Of Whisky Load Shifts to Jail

Two white men openly unloading a carload of whisky in downtown Atlanta yesterday were caught in the act by County Policeman Burton Carroll and taken to Fulton tower. Twelve cases of whisky were confiscated.

The case occurred on Exchange place behind the Hurt building, where the two were taking the cases from the automobile and putting them on the sidewalk.

Carroll, on his way to pay a bill, recognized the two and made the arrest.

J. R. Morris, 33, of 908 Washington street, was placed in the tower under $2,000 bond. He was told by officers to be a partner of R. H. Quillian, whom county officers arrested a week ago after a wild chase through city streets.

Quillian is under $6,000 bond on six charges. Edgar Morrison, 23, of 509 Boulevard, was picked up with Morris yesterday. He made a $500 bond at the tower.

ANTI-CRIME OFFICE ROBBED. PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—(UP)—Burglars broke into the offices of the Crime Prevention Association during the night and took $300, the Rev. Thomas A. Meryweather, executive secretary of the organization, reported to police today.

Better! Our Finer Foods JAMS, JELLIES

Not just like mother used to make...

Mother had to depend on the Kitchen Garden for her berries and fruits. But we had the whole world to pick from when we selected the materials that went into our Finer Foods jams and jellies! We went to the gardens of England and the orchards of southern France and Spain. We chose the firmest and juiciest and most flavorful fruits and berries from all sections of this country. We added only white sugar (no glucose or preservatives) and the result is ambrosial delicacies to tantalize the most exacting appetites! For example—

Imported York House Jams.....39c

NINE-POWER TALKS ON CHINA EXPECTED TO OPEN OCTOBER 30

Envoys To Decide What Nations To Invite For Parley Convened Then.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 15.—(UP)—Representatives of signatory nations to the nine-power treaty probably will convene here October 30 to decide what other nations were to be invited to discussions of the Japanese-Chinese conflict, government leaders said tonight.

After the first session the conference probably will adjourn for several days to allow the invited powers to send delegates.

Among the nations expected to receive invitations are Germany and Soviet Russia, neither of which are signers of the 1922 Washington treaty upholding China's territorial integrity.

The Belgian government announced earlier today that at the request of the United States and Great Britain, it was proposing that the conference be held in Brussels at the end of this month.

BRITAIN, FRANCE JOIN IN DEMANDS

Britain and France are joined in a united front came as some quarters predicted a new diplomatic victory for Italy at tomorrow's meeting of the nine-power nonintervention subcommittee.

In Paris a spokesman for the French foreign office said Britain and France had reached complete accord on notes to be read by their representatives before tomorrow's London meeting.

The notes, he said, will make a final demand for immediate recall of foreign troops from Spain.

The two powers, the spokesman continued, agreed to consider recognition of belligerent rights for the warring parties in Spain once withdrawal of volunteers was under way, but were prepared to "renew their liberty of action" if a general accord was not reached quickly.

Notes Identical.

The notes were said to be identical in substance, making it clear this was Italy's last chance to back out of Spain before the democracies take matters into their own hands. The notes were prepared after extended conferences in Paris and London.

Officials said they contained five points:

1. France and Britain accept Italy's suggestion that the question of recalling foreign volunteers be discussed in the nonintervention committee instead of a tri-power conference.

2. As evidence of good will, they ask all powers at once to withdraw a "symbolic" contingent from Spain and simultaneously agree to the principle of recall of all volunteers.

3. If an agreement is not reached within a period to be fixed by the head of the nonintervention committee, France and Britain would declare themselves at liberty to decide on their own course.

4. France and Britain propose a general method for withdrawal of foreign troops, providing for successive recall of detachments from both sides in Spain, with size in proportion to the total number of volunteers, until all volunteers are removed.

5. The two countries are ready to deliberate on the question of granting belligerent rights to both parties in the civil war when substantial progress has been achieved in withdrawals of volunteers.

Early Action Asked.

French officials indicated a desire that the Earl of Plymouth, British chairman of the nonintervention committee, fix a week as the period within which the agreement must be reached.

Britain and France will refrain

At 92, She "Listens In" Late at Night

Mrs. Nannie Munford, who celebrated her 92nd birthday recently, enjoys playing the piano each day. She cooks her breakfast occasionally and sits up all hours of the night to listen to interesting radio programs. She can tell her share of stories about Civil War days, too.

Despite Her 92 Years, Mrs. Munford Revels in Past, Present and Future

As a Girl of 17 She Recalls March of Sherman Through Georgia and Humorous Incidents Mixed With Tragedy; Plays Piano, Dances, Too; Likes a Little Nip.

By MAXINE LAND.

Mrs. Nannie Munford who celebrated her 92nd birthday the ninth of this month is feeling chipper despite her age and the fact that she's "been through the war."

She recalls the day Yankee soldiers took her best Sunday slipper and danced all over the house in them. She also recalls when a trip to Atlanta by stage coach was a day's journey, when girls dipped snuff instead of puffing on cigarettes. "And it was just as much fun, I expect," she said yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Rena M. Doyle, at 1031 McLynn avenue.

As a girl of 17, she lived in Barrow county about nine miles southeast of Cartersville, at the time Sherman marched through Georgia. She remembers the day her mother heard the Yankee soldiers approaching and took the meat from the meathouse to the second story, tore a place in the floor and dropped it down between the floor and the ceiling of the room below. "The grease spot is still on the ceiling," she said.

Camped in Their Home.

"Yankee soldiers camped in our house for two weeks," she continued. "They were very nice, the one's who stayed with us. Out of fun they took my slippers and put them on and danced all over the house."

"Those who followed were the ones who did the damage. They took all our geese, ducks, chickens and cows. They only left one old rooster and a pig."

Her blue eyes twinkled as she continued to relate the incidents harshly imprinted upon the mind of a timid 17-year-old girl in the hectic days during the Civil War.

Chicken Escapes Yankees.

"But I shall never forget how delighted we were to see that one from stating the exact action to be taken if the conference fails, preferring not to dangle a sword over the heads of the conferees. But French spokesmen have made it known that France is considering reopening her Pyrenean frontier to aid the Spanish government as a balance to Italian support to the Insurgents, and also the occupation of Minorca, in the Balearics, to protect her Mediterranean lines against Insurgent bases in other Balearic Islands said to be dominated by Italians.

Authoritative quarters in London understood that France and Britain had approached Russia in the hope of keeping the Soviet delegate, Ivan M. Maisky, from breaking up the nine-power subcommittee meeting by condemning "Italian intervention in Spain," but that no assurances were given.

BLAST HURTS SCORE

Fire Sweeps Wrecked Restaurant in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Oct. 15.—(UP)—More than a score of men, women and children were injured tonight when an explosion, followed by fire, wrecked a restaurant in the north end of the city.

Police said about 25 persons were in the restaurant when the blast occurred. Several were injured only slightly, but the majority were sent to hospitals for examination.

Man Robbed, Calls Police And Is Stabbed in Back.

Walking through Friendship alley last night with a girl companion, LeRoy Favors, of 47 Peachtree-Dunwoody road, was robbed of $3.65 by two unidentified negroes.

Favors went to 469 Mitchell street, pulled a $1 bill from his pocket, overlooked by the hold-up men, got change and turned to call police. As he asked for his number, a negro stepped in the door, stabbed him in the back.

He was admitted to Grady hospital. Police believe the negro stabber was to be one of the holdup men.

YEAR'S AUTO TOLL IS BOOSTED TO 48

Deaths of Two Negroes Follow Accidents; Hit-Run Autoist Sought.

Death of Fred Fitzgerald, 60, of 64 Fair street, S. W., and Julia Howell, 80, negro, of the rear 80 Hilliard street, from injuries received in recent traffic accidents, last night sent the year's total auto fatalities to 48.

Fitzgerald was struck Wednesday night by a truck driven by an unidentified man who failed to stop for a red light, witnesses said. The driver stopped, picked up the injured man, and took him to Grady hospital but left without giving his name.

Julia Howell was struck last night by a truck driven by Claud Shiffert, 25, negro, of 437 Sun-se-avenue. Taken to Grady hospital, she died while being transferred to the emergency ward.

The negro woman received two fractures of the left leg, one fracture of the right leg, fracture of the left arm, fracture of the ribs, fractured skull and internal injuries.

Radio Patrolmen G. C. Scoggins and J. D. Tinnie arrested Shiffert on charges of disorderly conduct, manslaughter. He is held without bond.

Fitzgerald received several fractured ribs, fractured leg and internal injuries.

Theodore Ziegler, 70, of College Park, janitor at the Druid Hills High school, was struck on Haygood drive in front of the school yesterday by an auto driven by M. L. Carter, Emory University student. He was taken to Emory University hospital, where his condition was reported "fair." No case was made against the driver.

In a street car-auto collision at Marietta and Wallace streets, Thomas A. Atwood, 36, of 661 Garrard avenue, N. W., and Edgar T. Croft, of 11 Morris street, S. W., occupants of the auto, were slightly injured. The street car was damaged after treatment at Grady hospital.

SHOCKPROOF UNITY URGED FOR WORLD

Hull Sees Radio as Important Factor in International Understanding.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Secretary Hull commended to the 21 American republics tonight an "international unity" which he will ground in mutual understanding that it will be proof against any shocks to which it may be subjected.

Inaugurating a series of regular broadcasts to Latin America under auspices of the Pan-American Union, the secretary of state characterized radio communication among the various countries as an important factor in the achievement of such an objective.

"As yet," he asserted, "we have hardly begun to fathom the possibilities of radio communication as a factor in the development of international good will and understanding."

"Through the new series of programs which the Pan-American Union is inaugurating today, we are taking an important step in the fulfillment of the resolutions of the Montevideo and Buenos Aires conferences."

(He referred to the Pan-American conference at Montevideo in 1933 and to the inter-American peace conference at Buenos Aires last December, both of which he attended.)

2 WOMEN SLAIN IN JEALOUS RAGE

Discarded Wife Opens Fire on New Bride.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15.—(AP) Fred J. Reynolds' discarded wife and his bride of two weeks met and died today in a burst of pistol fire.

Police Inspector George Engler said the divorced wife, Mrs. Nell Reynolds, 47, planned the meeting and fired the fatal shots.

The bride was Mrs. Neoma Nelson Reynolds, 33, Dallas, Texas, who had divorced Clarence Nelson in Reno last May 25, but who received word less than three months later that he had died fighting with government forces in Spain. In Reno, Reynolds, 35-year-old waiter, disclosed the identity of the two women and said the tragedy probably was caused by jealousy. Reynolds divorced his first wife in Reno six days prior to his second marriage.

PEGGED PRICE SOUGHT FOR GUM TURPENTINE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration received a plea today to establish a program of benefit payments to encourage new uses for gum turpentine.

Harley Langdale, of Valdosta, Ga., association president, wrote the secretary that one firm alone had indicated it would take 3,000 gallons during the next two years if it could be had at approximately 25 cents a gallon. It would be used, Langdale said, in a product for which gum turpentine is not now produced commercially.

The price in September, he said, averaged 29.9 cents a gallon and the season average has been 33.4 cents. He suggested 40 cents as the pegging price.

Bridges Is Irked By Tardy Mayor, Stomps on Home

Irked when Mayor Hartsfield and two police committee members were tardy, Alderman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the committee, called the scheduled session off last night.

Bridges and Councilman Cecil Hester were present at starting time but Hartsfield and Councilmen John T. Marler and C. M. (Mac) Bolen were attending a banquet. Bridges was just leaving when the late members arrived, but would not reconvene the meeting. Parking meters were to have been considered in addition to routine business, all of which was postponed until next regular session.

DR. ALBERT SHAW ENDS EDITORSHIP OF DIGEST

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The retirement of Dr. Albert Shaw as editor of the Digest was announced tonight, terminating one of the longest continuous editorships in the history of American magazine publishing.

At the same time the sale of the Digest by the Review of Reviews Corporation and the resumption of its former title, the Literary Digest, were announced through a syndicate headed by George F. Havell, the new owners.

Dr. Shaw founded the American Review of Reviews in 1892 and served at its active editor until about three months ago when he became editor of the Digest, a merger of the Review of Reviews and the Literary Digest. He is 81.

Dr. Shaw's son, Albert Shaw Jr., retired also today as president of the Review of Reviews Corporation.

SON OF MUSSOLINI, FEARED HURT, SAFE

ROME (Saturday), Oct. 16.—(UP)—Premier Benito Mussolini and high Fascist officials, worried over the safety of Il Duce's son, Bruno, who is fighting with the insurgent air force in Spain, were said to have been informed last night that the youth is safe.

Well-informed Fascist quarters said urgent inquiries were made when rumor spread that young Mussolini had met with an accident. Nothing had been heard from him for 48 hours.

The assurances of his safety supposedly came from Spanish insurgent military authorities.

Deanna Durbin Is Star in '100 Men and a Girl'

"100 Men and a Girl" is at the Fox theater this week.

The girl is the singing star, Deanna Durbin. Featured with her is Leopold Stokowski, one of the foremost orchestra conductors. The story is of a musician's daughter who helps 100 men round together an orchestra that makes the big time.

Others in the cast are Adolphe Menjou, Alice Brady, Eugene Pallette, Michela Auer, Billy Gilbert, Alma Kruger, Christian Rub and Jack Mulhall. The usual array of Fox shorts complete the program.

Single Divorce Sought by Man Thrice Married

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 15.—(AP) Henry Parris wants one divorce to dissolve three marriages.

The World War veteran, in his petition to Chatham county superior court today, said the Veterans' Administration is having as much trouble with his three "wives" as he.

The government, he said, concedes him three wives, docking him war benefit payments for all. Wife No. 1 deserted him two years after their 1907 marriage. Parris contends, and followed this by seven years' silence.

Wife No. 2 left him six months after their marriage in 1917, the petition said, and subsequently friends told him she was dead.

The third wife was last heard of in Atlanta a year after their 1923 marriage, the petition stated.

The latest development is the return of Wife No. 1, Parris said. He claims that since she is alive, his subsequent marriages are void.

All Parris wants now is for the court to determine his marital status, and whatever it is, undo it. He named all three women as co-defendants in his divorce action.

NEW STRUCTURES TO HOUSE INSANE TERMED NECESSARY

Buildings Condemned as
'Fire Traps' by State Planning Director.

Asserting many of the buildings at the state hospital for the insane are "fire traps," Director Richard C. Job, of the State Planning Board, reported to Governor Rivers yesterday all structures with the exception of two at the Milledgeville institution need extensive repairs.

Job also advised Governor Rivers that one of the buildings, used now to house 500 or 600 patients, be "razed and a new building erected."

"This building," he reported, "was rejected by the hospital engineer when it was constructed 30 years ago and is dangerous."

Should Be Razed.
Two other temporary wooden buildings, he suggested, should be torn down and replaced.

Job's survey was made at Rivers' request. The Governor plans to ask the general assembly this fall to start a $5,000,000 building program at state eleemosynary institutions—$1,000,000 annually.

Job reported "many of the buildings are fire traps."

He frequently mentioned overcrowded conditions, said "many patients are sleeping on floors." While the institution was built to accommodate 5,000, he said, its population exceeds 7,000.

Asks New Wards.
The report also covered the Gracewood Home for Feeble-minded Children where he recommended construction of two wards to house approximately 75 patients and replace two present wood buildings.

He also recommended "a modern 50-bed hospital" and reported a new building for boys will be completed this fall "but maintenance funds are not sufficient to open this building."

Job will continue his survey of other institutions and make recommendations to the Governor explaining needs of each.

CHURCH TO HOLD BIRTHDAY FETE

30th Anniversary To Be Celebrated Next Week.

The thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the Gordon Street Baptist church will be observed next week, to be featured each night by addresses from southern churchmen.

Established in 1907 near the scene of the great struggles in the Battle of Atlanta, this church was named the Battle Hill Baptist church at its inception. When the location was moved to the present site, Gordon street and Lucille avenue, the name was changed.

From a small beginning three decades ago, the church has grown to be one of Atlanta's large churches, the pastor, Dr. Thomas F. Harvey, pointed out yesterday. He said the membership now numbers 1,882 and that gifts to all purposes amount to approximately $400,000.

During the first 15 years, the church had five pastors. Then came Dr. W. H. Faust, who remained as pastor until 1936. Under him, a new church and pastorate, both costing more than $100,000, were built.

When Dr. Faust retired to become secretary of the department of evangelism for the Georgia Baptist Convention, the church had no debts.

A few months ago, Dr. Harvey was called from the First Baptist church at Hattiesburg, Miss., and since his pastorate began, more than 140 new members have been added to the church. A financial secretary and choir director have been employed, also.

Dr. Harvey will preach the morning service tomorrow on "The Lordship of Jesus," and on "Crime Never Pays" at the evening ceremonies. In his latter sermon, he said, he will allude to the time he conducted the funeral for a gangster, slain in Chicago.

DEKALB PATIENTS BARRED BY GRADY

Treatment Ordered Stopped
Pending Financial Pact.

Emergency and contagious disease patients from DeKalb county will be denied treatment at Grady hospital in the future unless DeKalb makes a financial settlement with the hospital, Councilman J. Frank Beck said yesterday.

Following a meeting of the Grady board of trustees, at which Superintendent J. B. Franklin was authorized to stop admittance of DeKalb residents, Beck asserted "efforts to make a financial arrangement with C. A. Matthews, DeKalb commissioner, are still under way."

He explained that the ban on DeKalb residents will not apply to those persons residing within the city of Atlanta in DeKalb county.

ALARM IN THE INDUSTRIAL EAST

Governors of New England states are laying plans to oppose any change in the present railroad freight structure, which gives unwarranted advantage to industry in their section through the higher rates charged southern manufacturers who send their goods to markets in competition with the output of eastern plants.

It is reported from Boston that what that section wants is retention of "present favorable transportation factors in the north" and no "allowance of equality of rates in the south." Thus it is frankly admitted that the present rates are unequal. Notwithstanding, a determined effort is to be made to retain an unfair advantage which has resulted, for half a century, in penalizing both the southern manufacturer and the southern worker.

The alarm of the east is striking evidence of the value of the conference of southeastern Governors which has led the fight for equity in freight charges. That conference has brought the injustice into the open and has achieved public hearings which are to be held by the Interstate Commerce Commission in Birmingham next month.

The Southeastern Governors' Conference should not be a temporary organization. It, or some similar body, should continue to work for this section, to secure results that can be obtained only through co-operative action. Certainly if the time ever comes when the Governors are no longer able to work together for such purposes, some other south-wide organization, with every opportunity for equal effectiveness, must be formed to carry on the good work.

The I. C. C. should take steps to place all sections of the country on a parity in so far as transportation costs are concerned. If this is done, the southeast will be able to continue its industrial expansion, to sell its goods on equal footing with the goods manufactured in the east, and to remedy the present small difference in wage scales paid in this section. It is the higher freight costs which have compelled the southern manufacturer to absorb that handicap in lower wage scales in the past.

PAYING FOR SLUMS

Declaring that cities are now, and always have been, subsidizing their slum areas, whether or not they have realized it, the National Housing Committee in a recent statement argues that this type of subsidy is a guarantee of continuance of these sub-standard areas as slums, instead of a provision for their removal.

The committee takes the position cities cannot afford, indefinitely, the cost of maintaining such sections. The taxpayers, it is pointed out, pay far more for the maintenance of slums than they would ever have to pay for their destruction and replacement with modern, up-to-date housing for the low-income groups.

Taking a slum area in Cleveland as an example, the committee appends some startling figures illustrative of the cost of a slum to the city as a whole.

The area in question represents .73 per cent of the entire land area of the city of Cleveland, but represents 2.4 per cent of its population. To show that the area is an actual social menace, a breeding place for crime, vice, delinquency and social dependency, the report shows that during the past 12 years 21 per cent of the murders perpetrated in Cleveland were committed by people of this section; 26 per cent of the city's houses of prostitution are located in the area; seven per cent of delinquency comes from this small section and 13 per cent of the deaths by tuberculosis occurred there.

Public expenditures on behalf of this area, including city, county and board of education, amounted in 1932 to $1,356,988, against a nominal tax income from the property in the area of $225,035. Added to this is $490,836 spent in the area by visiting nurses, day nurseries, associated charities and other private welfare agencies, leaving a net annual cost to the community of $1,622,789 for maintaining these slums. Then there is, also, an accrued tax delinquency for the district which, in 1932 amounted to $389,248, or 164 per cent of the total annual tax levy.

Other burdens on the taxpayers for this slum include 14.4 per cent of the total money Cleveland spends for fire protection, though only 2.4 per cent of the population resides there and 6.5 per cent of the amount the city spends for police protection.

These figures provide definite proof that, even discounting sympathy and sentiment, slums do not pay.

THE HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The Atlanta Historical Society is a group composed of citizens of Atlanta interested in the past history of the city and anxious to perpetuate its story for future generations to see. It is a group performing an invaluable service and one which possesses a fascination peculiar to itself by the very nature of its functions.

Undoubtedly there are today, hidden and, in many cases, forgotten, in the ancient desks, trunks and attics of many Atlanta homes, documents of surpassing interest about former activities in this city. Records of commercial, industrial, professional and civic events which were important to the growth of the city as a whole.

There is yet much data to be uncovered about the period of the War Between the States and the siege of Atlanta, while future students will undoubtedly find matter of vital concern in the stories of the business organizations which have been created, have served their city and then have passed from the local scene.

Social customs of the past, the story of the churches of all denominations, the achievements in sporting fields, and the story of the city from the political viewpoint, all provide fields for fascinating research.

Atlantans who may possess authentic information upon any phase of the city's history will best serve their community, for today and for the future, by making those records available to the Atlanta Historical Society.

CONCESSIONS TO MUSSOLINI

Great Britain and France have, once again, conceded a point of diplomatic argument to Italy and Mussolini. The two nations have abandoned their plan for a tri-power conference on the problem of withdrawing Italian "volunteers" from the battlefields of Spain and have consented to refer the issue, instead, to the 27-nation nonintervention committee.

It seems that both London and Paris are determined to leave to II Duce no possible grounds for logical complaint when the final showdown on the Mediterranean and Spanish situation comes. They are conceding every minor point and, if the Italian leader remains obdurate, whatever action then becomes necessary will be his responsibility alone.

It is as though two individual disputants were arranging the details of adjudication of their argument. One is so convinced of the logic and justice of his claim that he is willing to give every technical opportunity to the other, so that when the final judgment is rendered there can be no shadow of complaint that unfair advantage was taken.

If Mussolini refuses to abide by the decisions of the 27-power committee, he will be refusing the judgment of the arbiter he chose himself. Thus his ruthless determination to ride roughshod over all international law will be, once again, made plain for all the world to see.

And thus Britain and France will gain, whatever way the committee finds.

COTTON FOR BETTER LAWS?

W. M. Hutchinson, secretary of the Cotton Seed Crushers' Association of Georgia, points out a little known use for cottonseed meal and hulls which, if universally adopted, would provide an appreciable increase in the market for these by-products of the cotton plant.

Mr. Hutchinson asserts that cottonseed meal is an excellent fertilizer for lawns and that the hulls will aid new lawns when mixed with the soil to keep it porous and prevent "baking" or hardening.

Cottonseed meal has several advantages over other lawn fertilizers, according to H. J. Harper, soils specialist at the Oklahoma A. & M. College. The absence of odor is one and the lasting effect is another. Cottonseed meal, also, will not injure foliage.

"Because the rate of availability of the nitrogen in cottonseed meal is slow, the fertilizer acts over a long time and the grass develops with a uniform, dark, green color," says the Oklahoma agronomist.

If the claims for these products are true, their general adoption by home owners of Georgia as aids to perfect lawns would react favorably to the southern cotton producer in increasing the demand and thus, indirectly, aiding in maintaining the price.

Information about the use of cottonseed meal and hulls on lawns may be secured, it is stated, from the educational service of the National Cottonseed Products Association of Dallas, Texas.

"Suicide squads" of Chinese daredevils are cited in the news from Asia. At an instant's notice they are prepared to mingle freely with the civilian population.

Editorial of the Day

FOOT WORK

(From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.)
 The housewife's work, according to the ancient epigram, is never done. Neither, according to Dr. Joseph Lelyveld, director of the National Foot Health Council, is her walking. From the time she awakens in the morning and brings in the milk from the back porch until she winds the clock, sets the alarm and puts out the cat at night she travels seven miles daily, which is slightly less than twice the average that the tired businessman walks in playing 18 holes of golf.

But the housewife is not the only individual who covers ground by picking her feet up and putting them down again. The businessman, in the course of his employment, walks each month the distance between Boston and New York. The woman shopping-bent during the holiday season does eight miles selecting neckties for her husband and something for the children and for Aunt Samantha.

It frequently has been alleged that the automobile is causing members of the human race to forget for what purpose they were endowed with legs and feet. Ask the housewife who owns (and uses) a pair of them. She knows.

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAGE.

GHOST WILL NOT AWAUNT WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The affair Black is by no means the most startling so far. There is more than a faint possibility that it will present the scene of a justice of the supreme court appearing before that body to defend his own case.

When such a scene is a little difficult to picture, those who know Chief Justice Hughes say that it requires but little imagination to make this much of a prediction:

It is highly probable that this fall a hearing will be granted on a petition already drawn up, but not yet submitted, challenging Justice Black's right to sit on a certain case.

The reasons for the prediction are these: The chief justice has always been a stickler for orderly procedure and the preservation of the dignity of the court.

Unless the Black matter is settled once and for all, litigants from now until doomsday may be cluttering up the place with petitions to unseat the new justice.

JUST AROUND CORNER The petition about to be submitted will demand that a "quo warranto" writ be issued to show cause why Mr. Black is qualified to sit on this particular case. There is less likelihood that it will be refused on the basis of "no interest," other than that of a taxpayer and attorney, than in the Levitt case, since this petitioner will have a case before the court.

While this petition, of course, will refer to the specific case pending, it is allowed the argument will go straight to the general question: The constitutional provision prohibiting a member of the congress from accepting any office whose emoluments he has voted to increase.

Such a hearing, if it takes place, will write new history for the court.

The high spot, of course, would be the moment when Justice Black stepped down from the bench to defend himself. And while this would be a unique occurrence, it is admitted by those who ought to know to be much less than an impossibility.

POSSIBLE DEFENSE Mr. Justice Black may have an "out" in his defense.

There are those who believe that he could successfully plead that the provision of the constitution in question was for "guidance" only, and is not subject to judicial review. If the appointment was made by the President and confirmed by the senate, the deed is done, it would be argued, and beyond the jurisdiction of the court.

Precedents are scarce all along the line when it comes to the career of Mr. Black, but there is one that might be used in this instance.

Judge Ritter, of Florida, impeached by the senate, sued in the court of claims for salary on the grounds that his impeachment wasn't legal. The court of claims turned down the judge's plea, apparently yielding to the argument of the senate.

That it had no right of review.

That the law concerning impeachment was for guidance and no one could pass on what the senate had seen fit to do with Mr. Ritter, after it had done it.

NEW RADIO SET-UP Chairman McNinch, whose first sweeping change in his clean-up of the federal communications commission mess was to wipe out the whole radio vision, is living up to specifications.

It was mentioned in this column some months ago that he would play the Hercules for these Auggan stables.

Hereafter, the whole commission will act on the questions the one division handled by itself. Commercial radio interests are not disturbed by the change. It is believed the new move will serve to spread the work around and cut down jealousies.

FARMER-LABORITE TOUCH Farmer-Laborites cocked a sharp ear when the President spoke on Tuesday last, thinking they might catch some familiar phrases.

They hope, although they aren't talking about it in advance, that sooner or later the President is to embody in some of his public utterances some of the ideas which brought the late Floyd Olson, Governor of Minnesota, into the public eye.

The basis for this hope was an unpublished meeting in St. Paul, arranged, it is said, by the President's request.

Present at this meeting were Governor Phil La Follette, Governor Benson, of Minnesota, and members of the Farmer-Labor delegation in the house of representatives.

If the President used in his speech any of the ideas contributed as a result of this gathering, the phraseology is difficult to identify. He did refer to "balanced abundance without waste." The Farmer-Laborites of 1936 mentioned a "system of planned plenty" and was captioned, "For an economic order of abundance." High School Sororities

There has been much adult indignation, during the week nearing its end, about the indignities of initiation our girls undergo when joining one of these high school sororities.

For one, can't get terribly alarmed because the girls smear each other with machine oil, molasses, breakfast cereals, ashes and whatever messy concoction comes to hand.

After all the customs of youth are not the customs of age and when the oldsters of today were young they had their turn at shocking the preceding generation.

As a matter of fact the girls who undergo all the indignities of initiation are the ones who enjoy it the most. They'd hate to miss it and the ordeal is a subject for boasting for a long, long time afterwards.

There Is One Criticism, However.

The objection I have to sororities is not on behalf of the girls who are initiated, but for those who are not. It is the disappointed youngsters on the outside, those who have not been pledged, who have been silently relegated to the outside and who can never know the joys of initiation into the mysterious Greek letter sisterhoods, who deserve sympathy.

They are the ones to pity. For their souls have been affronted at a time of life when impressions are apt to stick. They have, many of them, been branded with an inferiority complex they'll never get over as long as they live.

And, in all essentials, they are just as fine girls as the members of the sororities. It isn't fair, that's all.

I'm opposed to sororities because of the caste they set up, because of the class distinction they create among children.

Mud and machine oil, after all, will wash off. The heart-breaking disappointment of the girl ignored, however, is a smear that all the soap and water and gasoline in the world won't eradicate.

Football

Of the Long Ago.

It is doubtful if any popular game has changed so drastically in its rules and methods of play as football. If any of the hundreds of thousands who pack into the stands of the nation this afternoon to see their favorite college teams battle could, right afterwards, see a game between teams of 30 or 40 years ago, played as they played then, it would not be easy to believe that both were football.

Back in those days of long ago two well known Atlanta men, brothers, were keenly interested in the football fortunes of Georgia Tech. Just as they were down the years that followed. They were themselves young then and their grand old father was living.

The father had never seen a football game and always sneered at the enthusiasm of his sons. So they laid their plans and, by dint of much diplomacy, persuaded the old man to accompany them to the big game on Thanksgiving Day.

It happened that it had rained hard and the field, at Heald Tech, seemed to lie in the line where Mrs. Roosevelt reveals that in mass formations, as they used to do, for about one quarter.

Then, in disgust, the old man got up and announced he was leaving.

"Football! Bah!" he snorted. "I've wondered what it is. Now I know. I can see exactly the same at home any time. All I have to do is toss an ear of corn into my hogpen. Bah!"

And he stamped out and never went to another game.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Family Party NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Writing of the family party at the White House the night before Mr. Roosevelt delivered the latest of his fireside chats, Mrs. Roosevelt, in her newspaper column for Tuesday, revealed that there had been dancing and singing to the music of an unnamed guest.

It would be unmanly to intrude in this private circle but for the fact that Mrs. Roosevelt herself, in the course of her employment as a professional journalist, has opened the door and bade us all in.

"It suddenly occurred to us at dinner," she wrote, "that we would like to dance afterward. My brother and I decided that we would search the household for someone who could play the piano. At first we could find no one. Then it occurred to us that there was a gentleman coming in to do some work who was musical and might be diverted into playing. We corralled him and he not only played dance music for us, but later the entire party gathered around the piano and sang. My husband had as good a time as anyone and amused us all enormously by singing one or two old college songs.

"This gay evening meant work afterward for several of the party. When I went in to see my husband this morning he looked at me disbelievingly and said, 'I was 3 o'clock this morning before I went to sleep!'"

Let's All Having named other guests rather pointedly omitted the name of the gentleman who came to do some work who played so attractively while the rest of them danced and sang, and the President amused them all enormously with one of two old college songs, Mrs. Roosevelt challenges us all to a guessing game.

Let us guess.

"Charlie Mike? No, not old Charlie! Did you ever see him? Marvin McIntyre? Not the type. Very pathetic, goes to bed early so as to be up at dawn for six rounds with his trainer, an old middleweight fighter.

Stanley doesn't live there any more! Then who is it that comes in at the White House to do some work and plays not only the piano but the accordion and the guitar, knows all the old college songs by heart, collaborates with Mr. Roosevelt on his fireside chats and is an important clue to all men up to all hours of the night?"

Could it be Tommy Corcoran, "White House Tommy," as they call him in Washington; Tommy, the cork to the President, the most active spook among the mysterious legions of literary and political wraiths who clank their chains through the corridors of the government and press the cold finger of terror on well-fed clubmen in their sleep?

Was It Tommy? We seem to be getting hot for this was the night before the chat that the gentleman came in to do some work, and what work would have been more urgent than the chat just then? And who else fits the description of Tommy Corcoran, written by Alva Johnston, wherein he said that Tommy plays Mr. Roosevelt's favorite tunes, that he knows no hours, and that he often goes to the White House to do some work, especially on presidential speeches to the country?

All these clues point to White House Tommy as the man behind the mike while all of us sat and listened Tuesday night; but the tip-off seems to lie in the line where Mrs. Roosevelt reveals that in mass formations, as they used to do, for about one quarter.

Then, in disgust, the old man got up and announced he was leaving.

"Football! Bah!" he snorted. "I've wondered what it is. Now I know. I can see exactly the same at home any time. All I have to do is toss an ear of corn into my hogpen. Bah!"

And he stamped out and never went to another game.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

REMEMBER THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

Roger W. Babson is a courageous thinker and spokesman. I do not always agree with him, but I never miss what he has to say on any subject. Since becoming president of the Assembly of Congregational Churches in the U. S. A. Mr. Babson has given close study to the religious welfare of our young people, a subject of immediate and vital interest to all right-thinking people. In a recent address Mr. Babson is quoted as saying:

"Take an interest in the young people's work of your church, since it is the biggest thing you can do for your church and your family. Use your influence to have your children attend church and the organizations for young people within the church.

Which reminds me of a tragic remark a father made in my presence recently. A mutual friend asked this father about his son, a lad of 18—what he was doing—what he was planning to do with his life—where he would attend college?"

"What do I know about his plans?" answered the preoccupied father. "I never see him except when he comes to my office for a check. He never has time to talk to me. I don't know what he expects to be and I don't know which college he expects to enter."

The trouble with that father, of course, was the fact that he didn't have time to talk to his boy.

Early Californian.

In 1542, a man arrived in California who didn't want to get into the movies. Juan Cabrilla, first European visitor to the Golden Land, arrived in Santa Barbara harbor. He wrote the first book about California without saying a thing about the relative merits of the northern and southern halves.

William Penn.

William Penn was born in England in 1644. 27 years before he founded Pennsylvania, where he went to live in the first brick house in America. He, a Quaker, made "the only treaty between savages and Christians not ratified by an oath—and the only one never broken."—as Voltaire said.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My Dear Louise:
 When you are twice your present age, there will be times when you will say: "I wish I could go back and live it over." But you won't mean just that. You won't wish to repeat the former experience, but to have your girlhood again plus the wisdom of maturity. I believe something of the kind is possible.

Do you know why so many old people are so serene and untroubled in a frantic world? It is because experience and philosophy have taught them an all-important truth that you can learn now if you will.

It is simply this, that our natural tendency is to live only in the present, without thought for the past or future, and therefore any matter that claims our interest and occupies our minds seems more important than it really is. We need comparison to judge values correctly, and when we can see only one thing and have nothing to compare it with, we are fooled by it. When you stand too close to a brick wall, it seems the only thing in the world.

The wise old people have learned this, and a matter that excites the multitude today does not disturb them; for if it wasn't important yesterday and will not be next year, it is only thinking that makes it important now.

Their wisdom is in judging a matter today as everybody will judge it next month or next year.

The trick of it, which anybody can learn, is to detach yourself from the present and mentally withdraw to a distance in time and space and thus get perspective. Once you learn the trick, you can view the present as calmly as other people view events in history.

In my old home town, members of the fashionable church once got into a row about the preacher's coat tails. Some of them, having lived in a city, thought a preacher, without tails practically nude; others considered any appendage to the ordinary coat a vanity and a showing off. They argued about it and quarreled. Old hats were revived. Neighbors quipped speaking. There was a fist fight on the street. The preacher's coat tails became the most important matter in the world and all else was forgotten.

Those who were worried about a plague of grasshoppers and mere coat tails seemed unimportant. But the point is that anybody with the knack of detachment would have known they were unimportant all the while.

The average person spends much of his life worrying about things that seem important only because he thinks about them too much. You'll save yourself a lot of grief if you learn to back off and get a long view.

Love, DAD.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"They reel, they roll, in clanging lines
 And when the tide of combat stands,
 Perfume and flowers fall in showers
 That lightly rain from ladies' hands."

On many a gridiron this Saturday knights of the piskin will be reeling and rolling and clanging, though the ladies of the grandstands may hold fast to their perfume and flowers they will be generous with their applause. Can it be that the south has marched to the top in football, the drama and temperance and intensity of competition for which the south stands have contributed to football's own march to the top in American games? As a modern outdoor spectacle nothing else compares with it now, and a big element in what makes it a spectacle is that no matter how much commerce may go with it, no matter what is behind or before the scene it sets, the spirit of players and spectators alike is still essentially amateur.

It is amateur because the players really care and the undergraduates and alumni really care and even the spectators in general really care. And what they care for most is not the commercial aspect, not the money bet nor the gate to be attained nor the scholarships given nor the hidden subsidies. They care most for the art and the glory of the thing, for victory for their side for victory's own sake. They care most for no individual player nor for themselves as individuals. They care for something greater than all or any one of them. They care for a team, a college, a part of the country.

Without consulting the psychologists, this column believes it is good for great numbers of our people to care, if only temporarily, for something greater than themselves, for some aggregate or organization to which they belong with their fellow men. And we believe that any sport which inspires both players and spectators to care like this with all their hearts and souls is only for a little while, is an amateur sport.

The Columbia State, which is kind enough to read this column, describes it as "rational liberal" or "liberal conservative." Since The State lives in an atmosphere where both history and destiny are served, and with intelligence and courage, it could not be expected to understand or believe that there are people in this world so lost to time and tide that they look upon this column as radicalism gone rampant.

Lots of points of view never get into papers. They should be published, it seems to us, for their clinical value if for nothing else. "Dear Sir," writes someone who signs himself "True Blue," "I read an article in which you described in a big way the K. K. as if it were some terrible affair worse even than the Communists or the Fenians or even the K. C.'s. Why can't a man belong to the K. K.'s as well as the K. C.'s, they are both good, and the K. C.'s are and of the two which is the most diabolical? Did you ever hear of the oath. The trouble with you fellows you are all scared stiff when some unmarried dad makes a holler at you, and you shut up. Why don't you stand up for God, home and country as the true K. K. does?"

SLAYER CAPTURED; BIRDS ARE HUNTED AFTER DARING BREAK

James Widmer Seized But
Bird Brothers Still Elude
Police.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 15.—(P)—James Widmer, fugitive slayer, was captured in Philadelphia today and federal authorities immediately spurred their search for his two desperate companions, Charles and Frank Bird.

The "Bird gang" trio in a sensational escape from the tower-like county jail here last month quelled seven deputies with smuggled guns and eluded police in a bullet-punctured chase through Cleveland streets in which their speeding auto struck and killed a woman pedestrian.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, announcing capture of the 31-year-old desperado in a stolen auto by two Philadelphia motorcycle policemen, said "there is no doubt that he is Widmer. There has been no question of it."

Ohio Highway Patrolman George Conn was executed in gangland fashion near Freeport, Ohio, several days after their escape last September 23, and Highway Patrol Superintendent Colonel Lynn Black said he would question Widmer at Philadelphia tomorrow.

"If the Brady gang did not kill Conn," Black declared several days ago, "the Bird gang did."

CONSOLIDATION AIM OF MIDDLEBROOK

East Point Merchant Seeks Seat on Fulton County Commission.

A plan for economy in county government through consolidation of city and county units was revealed yesterday in the announcement of T. M. Middlebrook, East Point merchant, of his candidacy for the vacancy on the Fulton county commission.

His statement follows: "In announcing myself a candidate for the office of commissioner of roads and revenues for Fulton county to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Edwin F. Johnson, I wish to say that no person was consulted before deciding to enter the race."

Economy Plan. "Like all candidates for all offices economy is the reason offered for my being a candidate and the way that economy can be effected in the county of Fulton is to consolidate the administration of the city of Atlanta and of the county of Fulton and it is my purpose to use all means possible to bring about this consolidation should I be nominated. In all my 60 years I have never before been a candidate for any office, I have no relatives who will have to be taken care of, have no political alliances of any kind, but I do lean to Longino and Ragsdale. I do not know of anything derogatory to the candidacy of any candidate who has announced for this office or who may later offer and if I did I would not mention it."

South of College Park. "I live out yonder on Woodpecker Hill two miles south of College Park on the Roosevelt highway and if nominated and elected will do everything possible to improve all of south Fulton county with special attention to the Red Oak community."

"I have operated a store in East Point for 10 years," Morgan Blake says. "I am the champion bread fisherman of the world; if you want a man on the board who will do the best for his county and for his community vote for me on November 9."

OIL CONSERVATION IS URGED BY ICKES

Petroleum Held Essential for War and Peace.

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 15.—(P)—Secretary Harold L. Ickes tonight warned the nation and the oil industry to conserve its petroleum supply for war defense and peace.

The secretary of the interior addressed delegates to the independent Petroleum Association convention.

"Oil has become a vital means to the defense of this country," he said.

JAMES HAMRICK RITES WILL BE HELD TODAY

Funeral services for James W. Hamrick, 43, who has been secretary and treasurer of the Carder Piano Company for the past 15 years, will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the First Baptist church of Villa Rica.

Mr. Hamrick died late Thursday at his home in Austell, following a brief illness. He is survived by his wife and eight children, Ruth, Lottie, Hazel, Louise, Nell, Ted, Bob and Joe, his mother, two brothers and a sister.

Petition Seeks Relief From 'Peril' of Autos

Traffic conditions at the intersections of Harris and Fort streets and Highland avenue have become so bad residents of the neighborhood have petitioned council to give "immediate relief."

Scores of persons signed the petition to be presented council Monday, which asserts reckless motorists have crashed into several buildings on the corners and almost demolished the walls.

Extension of Time Sought on Taxes

Extension of time for payment of city taxes without penalty will be sought in city council Monday by Councilman John A. White.

White said he will ask council to authorize tax officials not to issue fl. fas. for 30 days in an effort to encourage payment of taxes.

The legal deadline for payment was reached yesterday but tax assessors said it will be several days before fl. fas. can be issued. In the meantime, no penalty is collected. If council does not act Monday on White's proposal, then the penalty will be imposed next week.

CRAIGHEAD CITES HIS INDEPENDENCE

Attorney Vows He'll Not Be Aligned With Either Commission Faction.

Asserting there is need on the county commission for a man with no "political alliances," Edgar Craighead, Atlanta attorney, announced his candidacy yesterday for the vacancy on the Fulton county commission.

Craighead pointed to an "unfortunate split" which he said has resulted in recent years and said there is need for independence of thought in the commission.

Craighead Statement. "I hereby respectfully announce my candidacy for the position made vacant on the board of commissioners of roads and revenues, by the death of the late Mr. Edwin F. Johnson. I enter this race because, during the 25 years that I have lived in this community, I have become vitally interested in its problems and in love with its people. This is my first venture in an enterprise of this sort. I have decided to enter this race because, in my judgment, there is need on the county commission of this county of a man who is mature, intelligent, fair, and who has no political obligations resting upon him."

"You and I know that in recent years there has developed an unfortunate split in the commission of Fulton county, that has reflected no good or no credit on the county. I want it distinctly and emphatically understood that I am not allied at the present time, nor will I be in the future, with either of these factions or with any other factions that might develop."

Independence of Action. "I propose, if elected, to exercise in that office the same independence of action and thought that have characterized me as a private citizen. I believe as you do that the best interests of Fulton county demand and require at this time, or at all times, a commissioner of that sort. This I pledge you to be, if you select me in the special election to be held in November."

"I have not the effrontery to solicit your votes on a bare statement by myself, but I request you to inquire of any man or woman who knows me, and I shall be willing and glad to have your decision in this matter based on what you are told."

will probably greet the voting public.

Courthouse talk yesterday shifted the race down to two candidates, Troy G. Chastain and Edgar Craighead.

Previously, it was said by a high political source that Chastain would get the backing of the courthouse political machine, but that Schley Thompson, who has not yet qualified, would be a strong opponent.

Craighead was pushed to the forefront by political observers yesterday, however.

The courthouse political machine, said back of Chastain, consists largely of appointive officers in the county building. This includes the public works department, county police and possibly judges. The municipal court's voting power was said to be looming as a Chastain advantage.

Predicting a split in the county employ vote, observers believed that elective officers would throw their support to Craighead.

Chastain, however, asserts that he is not the chosen candidate of any courthouse faction. Reports are that the county commission, influenced, is adopting a "hands-off" policy toward the election.

Other candidates mentioned but not yet qualified include Fonville McWhorter, Walter A. Sims, former mayor of Atlanta, both from north Fulton county; W. A. Jones, of the Center Hill district; Thomas Croom Partridge, Atlanta attorney; Walter B. Stewart, former member of the commission, and R. T. DuHon.

GERMAN APOLOGIST OF WAR FAME DIES

Dr. Dernburg Forced From
U. S. for Defending Sinking of Lusitania.

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—(P)—Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, German propagandist who aroused American anger by his attempts to justify the sinking of the Lusitania in 1915, died today of heart disease after a long illness. He was 72.

Dernburg, who had been colonial minister in the German imperial government, was sent to the United States early in the World War to attempt to win American sympathy for the German cause. His mission, as head of the German propaganda service in America, backfired after the Lusitania was torpedoed. He returned to Germany in June, 1915.

Dr. Dernburg had lived in retirement since the Nazi regime came to power in 1933. He was a Jew and told anybody who cared to listen he was proud to be a Jew.

Soon after the World War broke out, Germany sent Dernburg, who spoke excellent English, to plead Germany's cause. From the German viewpoint his eloquence and keen mind made him the best of the spokesmen.

He worked nominally under Count von Bernstorff, the ambassador in Washington.

Three days after the sinking of the Lusitania in a speech in New York he defended Germany's act and thereby won out his welcome in America. The American government let von Bernstorff know that Dernburg was persona non grata. The best the ambassador could do for him was to secure a safe conduct from the British government.

Dernburg's defense of the Lusitania sinking was that she was the first British liner that carried munitions and therefore no longer was merely a passenger vessel.

JOHNSON PLEDGES FAIRNESS IN OFFICE

Buckhead District County Commission Candidate Is Law Firm Member.

C. O. Johnson, of the Buckhead district, promising a "fair, unprejudiced, intelligent and honest administration," officially announced yesterday his candidacy for the vacancy on the Fulton county commission.

"Having qualified with the county ordinary, I hereby announce my candidacy for commissioner of Fulton county to fill the unexpired term caused by the untimely death of Commissioner Edwin F. Johnson, to whom I was not related," his statement said.

"I am a graduate of Young Harris College, taught at O'Keefe Junior High school in Atlanta, Fulton county, for some years, was admitted to the practice of law in 1925 and in July of that year I became associated with the law firm of Alston, Alston, Foster & Moore, which association continues at present. I am a resident of Buckhead district, a member of the Garden Hills Civic League, Buckhead Fifty Club and the American Legion, among other civic and fraternal organizations. I have always done what I could in the interest of my community and church."

"I will appreciate the vote of the people of Fulton county and pledge them a fair, unprejudiced, intelligent and honest administration of their county government."

Firemen Rescue Flags Stuck at Five Points

Firemen came to the rescue of the traffic department yesterday. The American flag and traffic flag that fly at Five Points became stuck at the top of the mast yesterday and could not be lowered. Patrolman Harry Maddox asked permission of Chief Hornsby to call an aerial ladder truck. Permission was granted and the ladder men lowered the flags.

E. J. JAMES PASSES AT HIS RESIDENCE

Funeral Services Will Be Held This Afternoon.

E. J. James, 87, who had lived in the East Point vicinity all of his life, died yesterday afternoon at his home on Washington road.

Surviving are five daughters, Mrs. J. G. Mozley, Mrs. O. H. Moody, Mrs. Alvin Fain, Mrs. H. C. Lee and Mrs. Z. R. Stanford; three sons, T. H. J. M. and C. E. James, all of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Mount Olive Baptist church, the Rev. William Allison and the Rev. R. B. Hays officiating. Howard L. Carmichael will have charge of arrangements. Burial will be in Mount Olive cemetery.

MRS. A. D. TURNER, PIONEER, DIES AT 82

Woman Who Remembered
Sherman's March To Be Buried Today.

Mrs. A. D. Turner, 82, of Carrollton, whose home was raided by Union soldiers during the War Between the States, died at the residence Thursday night.

A native of Carroll county, Mrs. Turner had lived in Carrollton and surrounding territory all her life. She was a small child during the War Between the States but remembered plainly the visit of Sherman's soldiers to her home. She often recalled that her parents buried food and the family silver when they heard of the army's approach.

The elderly woman died as a result of a fall at her home last week. Until recently she had been a regular attendant at the First Methodist church at Carrollton, being the oldest member of the congregation.

A member of the Daughters of the Confederacy, Mrs. Turner was widely known in her native county. She is survived by one son, L. M. Turner Sr., of Carrollton; two daughters, Mrs. J. G. Cheney, of Carrollton, and Mrs. John M. Jackson, of Decatur; three brothers, Dr. A. H. Baskin, of Atlanta, Thomas and Wesley Baskin, of Hickory Level, and three sisters, Mrs. Annie Almon, Miss Etta Baskin and Miss Sam Pierce, all of Hickory Level. There are also 10 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren surviving.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the First Methodist church at Carrollton. The grandsons will act as pallbearers.

Life insurance actuaries say not more than 30 persons out of 1,000,000 ever live to be 100 years old.

"Dogs!... Swine!"

The young captain of the Polish Lancers hurled invectives at the fleeing Cossacks. He motioned to his bugler to sound a halt as his men pounded up to the old mansion from which the Cossacks had recently fled. He dismounted and rushed into the courtyard, knocking sharply at the heavy door.

The door opened a crack to reveal the white, scared face of an elderly serving man. He peered at the new arrival briefly; then his eyes filled with tears of joy. "Master Paul! Master Paul! Heaven be praised!"

"Stephen!" answered Paul, and grasped the servant's hand warmly. He brushed past him into the hallway where a young and beautiful woman was attending the wounded cheek of an aged man. She raised her head in fright at the newcomer, then laughed and cried in hysterical relief.

"Marie!" he rushed to her and covered her face with kisses. "Anastase," she wept as she turned to the elderly man whom she had been attending. "This is my brother, Paul. Paul, this is Count Walewski, my husband."

"This is a happy moment," smiled Walewski. The men embraced in Polish fashion, Paul kissing the other on the shoulder. He stepped back, and in one horrified moment, took in the wound on his brother-in-law's face and the wreckage in the hall.

"The Cossacks?" he asked bitterly. "The other nodded. They fled at the sound of your horses," explained Marie. "We feared you were more Cossacks come to complete the damage."

Paul shook his head in pity and rage. "I beg of you, my dear Paul, not to let this spoil your homecoming," said Walewski. He pointed to the debris on all sides. "Our visitors rearranged the room to conform to the Russian taste."

"But not for long," flared Paul. "Napoleon will help us free Poland. He's in Poland—now."

"Napoleon here?" cried Marie. "Now—now—NOW we are free!"

"Not quite, my dear," sighed her husband. "But the occupation has begun," said Paul. "Napoleon is within two days of Warsaw."

"Will Warsaw change him?" asked Walewski, moodily. "Will it make him a freeman, better than power? Will he guarantee our independence?"

"He will," Paul spoke with the assurance of youth. "I hope so," answered Walewski, skeptically.

Paul and Marie exchanged glances. How could anyone doubt Napoleon their eyes exclaimed. She turned to Stephen. "See to the men and horses, please. And light a fire in a room for Master Paul."

"But, Marie," protested Paul, "I can't stop. I must take my detachment on to Yarnoff. It's just luck that I'm here at all, even for this moment. But—I couldn't pass without stopping at Walewski to see you again."

Walewski motioned to Stephen to give him a hand. "Since your time is short, Paul, you must give it all to Marie," he said kindly. "And so, if you will excuse me, I'll retire."

They pressed him to stay, but with an indulgent smile, he took Stephen's hand and made for the room. When he had gone, brother and sister turned to each other eagerly. Paul looked her over from head to foot. "You're grown up, Marie—you're a great lady!"

"I'm a countess," she answered with winning vanity. "Do you still scratch N's on the ice of the window-panes?" he teased.

"And we were going to run away and join Napoleon's army," she reminded him. "Boys have all luck! Do you see Napoleon often?"

"Almost never," he admitted, "and always from a distance. It seems strange to live in the same world with him and not to have seen him," she said pensively.

"Perhaps you will see him. He receives the great wherever he goes. Your husband is one of the great men of Poland—and now that the Emperor is due in Warsaw—as a matter of fact, he's due in Bronie tonight. If only I didn't have to go to Yarnoff!"

"Due in Bronie, tonight?" she exclaimed. "Yes—he changes horses at Bronie in about an hour—"

"Paul," she cried. "Couldn't you stay the night so that we could both go to Bronie—just to see him, Paul. We've wanted to see him all our lives—Bronie is so near."

He took both her hands in his and kissed her fondly. "If we only could. But orders are orders, Marinka. I've hurried over—long as it is." He put his arm about her and they walked toward the door. "Boots and saddles," he called to an orderly waiting in the court. The bugler sounded the call. Paul kissed her again. "Marie," he said soberly, "I want everything in the world for you."

"I have everything," she answered. "I only want to see Poland free." She embraced him affectionately, then waited as he mounted his horse and headed his column of men. She stood in the doorway watching them ride off, an air of tense excitement enveloping her. Suddenly her mood changed to one of intense absorption. Stephen approached her with a fur cloak which she absently drew about her. She seemed unaware of him, and when she spoke, at last, it was as if out of a deep enchantment. "Stephen, get the sleigh and horses. We're going to Bronie."

"To Bronie?" he queried in amazement. "But Madame, that's three miles and the roads are full of soldiers and—why are you going to Bronie at this hour, Your Excellency?"

"I don't know why," she answered quietly. "Only—I must go to Bronie—I must—"

Soon she was wrapped in furs driving towards Bronie. As they reached the gates of the town, she called Stephen to stop the horses near an old shrine. She threw aside her robes and alighted; she hurried to the shrine and hid in its shadow. Within a short space of time a coach drove toward the inn within the gates. Napoleon stepped out, followed by his marshal, Duroc, and his aide-de-camp, D'Ornano.

Marie stared wide-eyed, her heart pounding with excitement. Napoleon pointed to the gates. "Let's stretch our legs," he suggested and started briskly down the road toward the shrine. Four grenadiers took their places so that the wickered in the center of a hollow square. D'Ornano and Duroc following a few paces behind. As they passed the shrine, D'Ornano spied Marie. He wheeled sharply and drew his pistol. "Come out of there!"

She emerged slowly from the shadow. "Keep your hands up—under that light," he commanded. She came out and stood in the full light so that she could be clearly seen. There was a moment's silence as the eyes of the men fell on her beautiful, pale face. Napoleon seized a torch from a grenadier and advanced toward Marie, examining her intently. "Who are you?" he demanded.

"Marie"—her emotion at being addressed by him overcame her and her voice faltered. "Marie?" he questioned. "That's a good beginning, but you're too pretty to be just Marie. You're not frightened?"

"No, your majesty," she murmured. "Then you know who I am?" "Your majesty!" he exclaimed. "Yes, your majesty. I knew it at once. You were like—"

"Like what?" he asked. He laughed toward D'Ornano. "This is an interesting country, eh, D'Ornano?" He turned again to Marie. "Don't be afraid. A pretty woman has no reason to be afraid of Napoleon, Marie, Marie—Marie what?"

"Walewska, sire." "Make a note, D'Ornano. Marie Walewska? What are you doing here, Marie?"

"I—I had to come, sire," her voice was barely audible. "Had to?" he asked quickly. "You were sent." He frowned. "By whom?"

"No one, sire." "You were sent by whom?" he repeated. "By no one, sire. You were in Poland—my country—at last! Her voice trembled. "The hour I had dreamed about since I was a little girl—I stopped, alarmed, by her own impetuosity."

"A patriotic Napoleon laughed. "And with a face like that! I must get to know the Poles better."

"The coach is ready, Sir," D'Ornano broke in. "You've made note of the name?" asked Napoleon.

"Yes, Sire." Napoleon put out his hand and touched Marie's cheek. "Real," he murmured. "She's real." Bending his head, he kissed her swiftly. "Extraordinary," he said under his breath. He turned and made for his coach and a moment later was gone into the night.

Marie stood there dazed. Stephen came up behind her hesitantly. "You'll take cold, Your Excellency," he ventured.

She looked at him with unseeing, stony eyes, her hand caressing her lips where Napoleon had planted his kiss.

UNCLE RAY'S Corner

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK.

Next week I plan to tell about several "perpetual motion" machines, but today I want to tell about one I "invented" during my boyhood. I was 13 years old at the time, and I believed I had figured out a great thing.

Someone had told me about efforts to make perpetual motion machines, and had said they all had failed. That set me to thinking of how I might make a wheel go around and around without any power driving it.

Suddenly an idea flashed across my mind. I would make a wheel with hollow tubes in it, and in each tube I would place an iron ball. When I gave it a little start, the balls on the right side would run down the tubes, and weigh the ends down. At the same time the balls on the left side would move toward the center of the wheel, and would be "outweighed" by those on the other side.

The result, I supposed, would be that the wheel would keep turning around forever. I kept thinking of what a wonderful invention it would be, and of the great riches which would come after I obtained a patent.

What would I do with all my money? Some of it I intended to use to make my father and mother and brothers and sisters happy. Some of it would be spent to buy books, and some to pay the cost of far travels. There were friends too, who could make good use of money, and I would give some to them. At recess I told one boy a little bit about the idea, and I think I promised him a share in my coming wealth.

The first thing to do, I decided, was to make a model. Going to a soda fountain, I obtained some straws. These would be the tubes in my model. I carried the straws home with great care, and there I put two of them together crosswise, and stuck a pin through the center of the cross. In each tube, I placed a bee-bee shot, and I closed the ends of the tubes with pins.

Holding the center pin, I gave the straws a spin. The bee-bees moved about the way I expected, but my wheel went around only two or three times! What could be the matter? I tried again, but with the same result.

It seemed to me that the model must not have been made in just the right way. I went to my father, and asked him why my wheel did not keep going around.

"Because there's just as much weight to be lifted as there is pulling down," he replied. "Those words were hard to believe, but they were true. Seeing my downcast face, my father added, "But it was a pretty good idea for a boy."

NEW FOREIGN STAND EXPECTED TO BOOST NAVY EXPENDITURES

Service Hopes To Have
Fleet at Full Treaty
Strength by 1942.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(UP)—America's new policy in international affairs was expected tonight to force upward revision of navy budgets to bulwark this country's efforts for world peace with battle fleets second to none.

United States collaboration in the forthcoming nine-power conference and President Roosevelt's warning at Chicago that this nation must not consider itself isolated from a warring world added new pressure for acceleration of a vast naval program.

The navy, with 75 new war vessels under construction or contracted for, is pressing toward a goal of reaching full strength permitted under the old London treaty by 1942. This limitation, no longer recognized by Great Britain or Japan, would permit a United States navy of 1,165,700 tons with battleships limited to 15 vessels and heavy cruisers to 18.

The new emphasis on America's world relations, however, is expected by many experts to force new construction appropriations above the $130,000,000 approved during the 1938 fiscal year.

Navy budgets will not be revealed until early next year. A Navy Department recapitulation showed the following United States comparison with sea strength of the two other major sea powers—Great Britain and Japan:

PRESENT STRENGTH:
	No. Ships	Tonnage
United States	352	1,063,350
Great Britain	285	1,316,398
Japan	240	1,450,000

THE MIAMI HERALD SOLD TO OHIO GROUP

John S. Knight Becomes
President; Shutts Holds
'Substantial Interest.'

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 15.—(AP)—John S. Knight and associates of Ohio today acquired ownership of the Miami Herald from Frank B. Shutts, who founded the morning newspaper in 1910. The price was not announced.

Mr. Knight and his associates own and operate the Akron (Ohio) Beacon-Journal and the Massillon (Ohio) Independent. Mr. Knight, who becomes president of the Herald, is editor of the Beacon-Journal and president of both Ohio newspapers.

In a statement to be published in the Herald tomorrow morning Mr. Knight pledged "a well-edited, vigorous newspaper" and continuation of "the sound policies and enviable traditions of the Herald."

Mr. Shutts in an adjoining statement said, "I am reserving a substantial interest in the corporation, shall remain upon the board of directors and shall be affiliated with the Herald in an advisory capacity." He added that "no sweeping changes in the personnel are anticipated."

The new owners assumed control of the paper immediately with John H. Barry as vice president and James L. Knight secretary-treasurer.

AMAKER GETS LIFE IN WIFE SLAYING

One-Legged War Veteran
Convicted After Jury De-liberates 3 Hours.

Leonard W. Amaker, 40-year-old one-legged veteran of the World War, was given a life sentence yesterday for the murder of his wife, Lillian, whom he shot May 25 in their Parkway drive apartment.

A Fulton superior jury brought in an open verdict of guilty yesterday afternoon after little more than three hours' deliberation. A life sentence was recommended and Judge E. D. Thomas will pass sentence on Amaker this morning.

Under an agreement of prosecution and defense counsel, the jury was allowed to bring in an open verdict to be turned over to the sheriff and read to the defendant. Judge C. J. Ferryman, visiting judge who heard the case, left immediately after he had charged the jury strictly on a finding of guilty or not guilty. No statement was made as to manslaughter.

Lecture on Christian Science Given By Bicknell Young, of Chicago, Here

'Christian Science: Man's Immortality Revealed' Topic of Chicagoan in Auditorium of First Atlanta
Church of Christ Last Night.

A lecture on Christian Science, entitled "Christian Science: Man's Immortality Revealed," was delivered yesterday in the auditorium of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Atlanta. Bicknell Young, C. S. B., of Chicago, Ill., was the lecturer. Mr. Young is a member of the board of lecturership of the mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Mrs. Sara L. Worcester introduced the lecturer, who spoke in part as follows:

"The propositions of Christian Science, although not as yet universally accepted, are more or less familiar to the reading public. It is also well known that this science is primarily a healing system, and that the church organization, including all the activities of the movement, sprang originally from the healing work which the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy, performed."

"The book, 'Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures,' the textbook of Christian Science, is widely read even by people who are not as yet known as Christian Scientists.

"Science of Life.

"Christian Science is seen to be what is actually, the science of life. Now each one of us is instinctively and permanently interested in life or existence. Not only is this interest instinctive, but in view of the fact that existence is fundamental to everything that one may be or do, desire to be or do, the science of life is unquestionably the most important subject that can engage our attention. According to the beliefs, education, and experience of mankind, seldom influenced as they are by actual truth, existence is wholly material. Even religions, as ordinarily conceived of, accept matter as the reality of existence and teach that to gain spiritual existence a change of place brought about through death is necessary. Whereas Christian Science accepts spirit as the only possible actuality of existence and teaches that the way of gaining it is not through a change of place brought about by death or disaster, but by a change of consciousness brought about solely by spiritual education.

"Experience has proved that no human being can understand his own existence, much less the laws of it, if he regards it as material. Seeing himself materially and trying to find out what he actually is, he is more mystified the more he tries. So much is this the case that it is quite generally said by distinguished natural scientists who devote themselves to the explanation of matter that the more they investigate it the more elusive it becomes.

Mary Baker Eddy.

"Over 60 years ago, Mary Baker Eddy, through spiritual inspiration and spiritual research, saw clearly that matter did not hold within itself either principle or law by which to explain itself or anything else. She saw and announced that God, the primal Principle of all being, is super-sensible to be understood only through an awakened recognition of His divine and infinite self-sufficiency and power.

"Man, representing mind, is then correctly defined as the idea of mind. This gives us an entirely different concept of ourselves from that of mere material personality, and our interest in our real existence and in the endeavor to demonstrate it, is thus stimulated step by step.

"The Christian Science textbook says (p. 507), 'Creation is ever appearing, and must ever continue to appear from the nature of its inexhaustible source.' With the understanding that God is the self-existent Principle of all being, and that man, meaning ourselves, primarily and eternally represents God, it is readily seen that this idea of God and man is not human but divine, and it is just as readily provable that a more, satisfactory and permanent sense of existence ensues when one maintains this idea.

"The house of deities adopted and sent to the house of bishops for concurrence a resolution indorsing campaigns against syphilis and urging church members to co-operate.

DISCUSSION GROUP LEADERS CHOSEN

Christian Youth Conferences
Will Start Friday; Attendance of 1,000 Sought.

Leaders of the discussion groups that will feature the Atlanta Christian Youth Conference beginning at 3 o'clock Friday at the First Baptist church were announced last night by Arthur O. Hayes, chairman of the young people's commission of the Christian Council of Atlanta and vicinity.

Mr. Hayes said the following men would lead the various groups: C. T. Stewart, Atlanta teacher, student life problems; F. D. Burge, a leading architect, problems of business life; Dr. C. R. Stauffer, pastor of the First Christian church, the social life of Christians; Dr. E. G. Mackay, pastor of the First Methodist church, Christian citizenship; Dr. W. A. Shelton, president of the Christian Council, the right racial attitudes.

Bible study will be in charge of the Rev. Harold Shields, pastor of the Gordon Street Presbyterian church, and the Rev. William E. Crane, pastor of Ormewood Park Presbyterian church, will lead the group studying ways of doing missionary work among persons hitherto unreached by the church.

Leaders for the groups from 26 years of age and up include Dr. Stuart R. Oglesby, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church; Edwin S. Preston, superintendent of the Druid Hills Baptist Sunday school; James May, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. at Georgia Tech, and the Rev. Emmett S. Johnson, director of young people's work for the North Georgia Methodist Conference.

The goal set for the convention is 1,000 young people, it was announced.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 15.—(AP) Robert L. Edmond Sr., 72, prominently identified in industrial circles in Columbus, was struck and fatally injured by an automobile here early tonight.

The accident occurred near Edmond's home in the Wynnton section. He was walking at the time he was struck. He died a short time later at a local hospital.

yesterday were based on three contentions—that the bullet wound inflicted by Amaker upon his wife was not the principal cause of her death three months later, that the shooting occurred as an accident when Amaker tripped getting out of his chair, and that the war veteran was temporarily insane at the time of the shooting.

On the other hand, Assistant Solicitor General Walter LeCraw argued for the state that the autopsy report attributed Mrs. Amaker's death to the bullet wound and cited the testimony of Dr. W. B. Matthews, Grady pathologist who performed the autopsy, in which he said the wound brought about her death. He further showed that Amaker and his wife had quarreled incessantly the day of the shooting.

EPISCOPALIANS VOTE ATTACK ON SYPHILIS

Deputies Approve Measure
To Require Certificates
Before Marriage.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Virginia, cradle of Episcopalianism in the United States, was conceded tonight a strong chance of giving the Protestant Episcopal church its first presiding bishop from that state.

While the re-election of the Rt. Rev. James Dewolf Perry, of Providence, R. I., was being predicted by many churchmen, the Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, bishop of Virginia, entered the picture on the eve of the election as a likely possibility.

The convention decided to hold the 1940 convention in Kansas City. A canon amendment, approved today by the house of deputies, would require couples to submit a physician's certificate, certifying freedom from venereal diseases, before they could be married by an Episcopalian minister. The amendment goes to the house of bishops for concurrence.

The convention voted to raise $300,000 for missionary and relief activities in China; said it was "appalled by the slaughter and suffering of noncombatants."

The house of deputies adopted and sent to the house of bishops for concurrence a resolution indorsing campaigns against syphilis and urging church members to co-operate.

Washington Prepares for Windsors To 'Happen Along' on November 15

Everything Is Unofficial, But Government Departments
Are Being Approached for Appointments To Meet
Best Qualified Housing Experts in United States.

By BETH CAMPBELL.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Preparations began today, oh, so quietly—for a visit by the Duke and Duchess of Windsor on November 15, opening day of the special session of congress.

Everything was unofficial, but some government departments were approached regarding appointments through which the former King of England might meet experts best qualified to guide his proposed study of housing and working conditions in the United States.

It appeared that the Duke, who tendered the respects of the British crown to President Coolidge when he last visited here as Prince of Wales in 1924, might visit the capital next month only as "a friend who happens along" with Charles E. Bedeaux, New York industrial engineer.

Efforts are being made quietly to arrange interviews for Bedeaux, in whose French chateau the Duke married Mrs. Wallis Simpson last June. No secret is made of the fact, however, that officials who see Bedeaux also will see the abdicated British monarch, who is reported to be on a private citizen's role.

Some government officials were wary, however. They sought to mark time until they learn whether the British embassy will make official appointments for the Duke and his American wife.

"I've never been so black in my life," the Duke observed as he washed the grime from his hands and face and changed from his miner's overalls for the short trip to Essen.

He tramped untiringly through the Krupp plant. Only the section where war materials are manufactured was omitted from the tour. Accompanying the Duke were Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, the plant head, and his son, Albert.

Because of a long-standing rule against women in the plant, the Duke left the Duchess at the gate. During his three-hour tour she had tea with Frau Krupp.

CHEMIST ASSAILS MARGARINE TAXES

Washington Expert Urges
Southern Agriculturalists
To Fight 'Butter Lobby.'

Southern agriculturalists were urged yesterday by Dr. J. S. Abbott, Washington chemist, to unite in fighting present high state and federal taxes on margarine imposed under influence of the "selfish dairy and butter lobby interests."

The tax on margarine, in some states 15 cents above the regulation federal 10-cent tax, per pound, is keeping the poorer class of people from having a cheap, yet energy-producing food, Dr. Abbott said.

"Vicious Propaganda." "The 'dairy and butter lobby' is making people turn from the cheap margarine to use of lard and butter, he declared, thus removing a market for oil from cottonseed.

Dr. Abbott was in Atlanta yesterday to address a luncheon given by Charles J. Haden, philanthropist, for a group of leading Georgians and to address last night a meeting of the Atlanta division of the American Chemical Society. The chemist, who has worked

GENTLEMEN WE GIVE YOU THE MOST MODERN CHASSIS IN THE WORLD

Under the new beauty of Buick, modern engineering makes history, co-starring the DYNAFLASH ENGINE and TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING

WHAT HAPPENS inside the 1938 Buick engine happens nowhere else in the world.

That is not advertising language, it is cold-steel engineering fact.

Speeding through the raceways of the intake manifold, the fuel mixture vapor hurricanes into the cylinders at speeds around 250 miles an hour.

As it sweeps past streamline valve contours, a scientifically designed Turbulator, built into the piston face, flings it into airswirls of terrific turbulence.

The spark that leaps through that compact storm-center sets off a flashing cyclone of power, exploding with tornadic force!

Sitting in the driver's seat you become aware of power that is livelier and more brilliant because gasoline is giving up more performance than it ever gave up to motorists before!

To MATCH this incomparable stride, Buick engineers now give you a kind of springing you will likewise find on no other car in the world.

Poised on jarless coils of easy-flexing steel, Buick floats free of bobble, jar, chatter, jounce.

The car will not over-steer or under-steer—skidding, even on icy highways, is blessedly reduced.

Rear tires no longer scuff half their life away through power-wasting wheel-slip.

Through winter and summer, without need of grease and without "seize" from rust, dirt, water or ice, springs keep their gentle, even cushioning for the life of the car.

Yes, it is a great story, the story of these twin engineering triumphs in the 1938 Buick.

So great a story that it obscures half a score of other advances, themselves enough to make any car a wonderful buy.

We invite you to learn more about them this week at any Buick showroom.

Tech-Duke Rated Toss-Up; 25,000 Expected To See Game

BREAK O'DAY!
By Ralph McGill

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 15.—This morning they took the Georgia team and party for a ride around town. There was Paul Revere's grave and the Old North church from which the sexton hung the light to tip off the approach of the British. There was the grave of Mary Goose, who wrote the Mother Goose stories.

There were other sights, but at last we came to the Boston commons where the soap box orators are allowed to talk on anything they choose. And farther on was where the stocks and the other means of punishment employed by the Puritans had been placed.

One of them was the ducking stool. In it were placed the victims. It was then ducked beneath the water and if the gentleman doing the ducking was not a kind man he sometimes kept them under until they drowned. This, of course, was just a sad mistake. But mistakes will happen. The gentleman who was explaining things, said, "One of the crimes was that of nagging. In those days a nagging wife was placed in the ducking stool and given a very severe ducking."

There was a silence for a moment and then there was a loud sound of some one being slapped.

A gentleman with a very red face, on which were the white imprint of five fingers, was standing there very ill at ease indeed. "I didn't like the smile on his face," said his wife, "when that man told about ducking nagging wives."

"My love," said the man, who was much smaller than his wife, "I was not smiling."

"You were," said his wife. "And you looked as if you thought it was a good idea."

It developed later they were not members of our party. After we had seen the navy yard and Harvard and a lot of other places, we came on back to the hotel and the team had lunch and went out for practice.

A VERY BAD POSITION.

I am sorry they did this to me. Down south, in my natural innocence, I had decided that Georgia would win the football game here Saturday afternoon. But everyone up here says no. All the reporters select Holy Cross. Mr. Grantland Rice picks Holy Cross. One of the gentlemen writing here says that Georgia, having left the union during the Civil War, has been trying to get even ever since by beating Yankee football teams. Having thus led me on by adopting a kindly attitude he ends up by picking Holy Cross to win.

I have read the newspapers until my astigmatism is much

By JACK TROY.

Georgia Tech and Duke meet today in a football game that may well be rated a toss-up, all things being equal.

It's a game that may well rest in the laps of the gods. The kickoff is at 2 o'clock at Grant field. A crowd of easily 25,000 is in prospect.

The majority of the experts rate Duke a favorite, but Tech has a fighting chance and the advantage of playing on the home field.

An inspired Tech team can rise to the occasion and win. But it will take sheer genius or inspiration to do it.

SUPERIOR LINE.

Duke logically is credited with a superior line and superior manpower both in line and backfield. But no amount of logic can determine which team will get the breaks.

And the breaks, by the way, may play a highly important part in this fifth annual game which matches the strategy of two great coaches—Wallace Wade and W. A. Alexander.

Duke won last year, 19 to 6, on the home field. And the Blue Devils, fortunate in having a fine replacement for the departed Ace Parker, are not weakened by the departure of other men.

And so Duke, by all rights, deserves to be the favorite; Tech the underdog. Tech experienced a rather wholesale exodus of players.

This is especially important because it means that seven of Tech's 11 starters will be new to Duke and Wade's style of play.

One big question evolves around Duke's ability to play inspired football on two consecutive Saturdays. The Blue Devils had to use all their guards against Tennessee and the game, of course, resulted in a scoreless deadlock.

EASIER GAME.

Tech had much the easier game against Kentucky. However, it is highly possible that Duke will play inspired football against Tech because the Blue Devils will never forget the two previous games on Grant field. Twice Tech knocked them out of a chance to go to the Rose Bowl. Duke never has scored on Grant field.

Few teams ever have beaten a Wade team badly. Only twice in all his coaching experience has Wade seen one of his clubs beaten by a margin of 23 points.

Wade took an Alabama team east in 1923 and Syracuse won, 23 to 0. And in his first year at Duke, Tennessee won, 25 to 2, also a margin of 23 points.

A Tech team gave Wade his third worst beating. But it was the Tech team of 1928—the Golden Tornado—and the score was 33 to 13, a margin of 20 points.

It is quite a record. And yet some are so bold as to say this Tech team might beat Duke today by a margin of three touchdowns.

If, by some chance fate, such a thing were to happen, the greatness of Tech would be extolled from the rock-bound coast to the sun-kissed shores and back again.

BROOKS INJURED.

Tech does not come up to the game as physically fit as the coaches would desire by a long shot. J. L. Brooks, dynamic guard who played well against Kentucky, will do well to play. He has an injured ankle.

George Smith, able reserve end, also has an injured ankle and his chances of playing are deemed doubtful. And to make matters worse, Eston (Little Tarzan) Lackey, sophomore tackle, has been out most of the week because of a leg infection.

Take three such boys away from any team and it hurts.

There are expected to be few changes in the Tech lineup as of the Kentucky game. Jack Nixon will start in place of Brooks. That may be the only one. There is some question, however, as to whether Glenn Cushing or Walter Rimmer will start at left tackle. Cushing opened against the Wildcats.

Tech expects to be outmatched in punting, punt coverage and returns.

It may well be that Tech will show a much better and more

Tech Tackles To Be Tested By Big Devils

Here's 'Brains' Of Wade Team, Honey Hackney

Constitution Staff Photos—Cornett.

Georgia Tech's tackles will be put to the test today at Grant field against Wallace Wade's behemoth Blue Devils of Duke. General Wood, a sophomore, and Glenn Cushing, shown left to right above, are facing Duke for the first time. The Blue Devil forwards will have a huge advantage in weight. Elmore (Honey) Hackney, right, is the brains of the Duke eleven. He can kick, pass and run and is particularly dangerous on punt returns. The majority of experts favor Duke to win today. The teams enter the game even on the record, each having won two in the series.

Tech Badly Outweighed By Wade's Devils Today

Jackets, Who Have Chance, Ask No Odds in Poundage or Experience at Flanks.

By JACK TROY.

Tech will be at a heavy weight disadvantage in the line against the Blue Devils of Duke today.

The Jackets are able to put only one 200-pounder on the field. That's Glenn Cushing, tackle. Walter Rimmer, his replacement, weighs 165.

Even with J. L. Brooks out of action, Tech still will start with rather midsize guards, as guards go. And, especially, as Duke's guards go.

Jack Nixon weighs 182; Allen Wilcox swings the scales around to 175 after a heavy meal.

LIPSCOMB POWERFUL. Captain Lipscomb, called Tugboat, is a power at guard in the Blue Devil line. He is a great big fellow, as are, indeed, all the members of the strapping fore-wall.

Tech, now able to offer only one 200-pounder, was at no such weight disadvantage last year with such line men as Preston, FitzSimons, Chance and Lindsay. There was no lack of weight there.

TWO AGAINST ONE. While Tech has only one tackle as big as Cushing—his running mate, Wood, weighing 190—Duke has a couple named Brunansky and Yorke, either of whom are larger.

Jack Chivington, Tech's center, decidedly outweighed by Duke (Tiger) Hill, who also is vastly more experienced.

Duke claims All-American recognition for Herbert Hudgins, an end who was only changed last spring from a reserve halfback. That's one of the outstanding examples of the wizardry of Wade.

But Tech won't have to give Duke any odds at all. While seven of the 11 starters today will be new to the Blue Devils, Big Bill Jordan and either Jim Morgan or Ed Jones are not and are readily able to take care of themselves.

MIDDLE WORRY. Defensively speaking, it is rather disquieting to the Tech coaches that so many starters are new. For it takes in the all-important "middle."

The middle men, as in any other lines of endeavor, usually catch it. Both backfield and the safety man are new starters. And so are the two tackles and the two guards.

Notwithstanding all this, Tech is prepared to give Duke an old-fashioned battle. The majority of the experts rightfully favor Duke, but the Yellow Jackets have a chance.

All the logic, comparisons or reasonable deductions can't get around the fact that Tech has a chance.

Seabiscuit To Get Money Chance Today
NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Seabiscuit, champion of the handicap division from C. S. Howard's stable, gets his chance to enter the select group of horses which have won $200,000 when he opposes 11 worthy rivals in the mile of the $7,500 Laurel stakes tomorrow.

The four-year-old son of Hard Tack, winner of eight of his last nine starts, has earned $194,285, the greater part of it since being purchased by the California sportsman for $7,500 last year. He tops the 1937 list with winnings of $152,780 since January 1.

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT. Miss Dorothy Sanford beat Mrs. Guy Butler, 1 up; Mrs. J. C. Wright beat Mrs. Max Mentzer, 4-3; Miss Louise Cagle beat Mrs. Sam Ramsey, 3-2; Mrs. W. L. Wooten beat Mrs. Henry Hubbard, 3-1.

SEMI-FINALS. Mrs. O. B. Keeler, bye; Mrs. Joe Vane beat Mrs. Albert Donaud, 3-1; Mrs. W. C. Vines beat Mrs. J. C. Milling, 4-3; Mrs. Robert Mochrie beat Mrs. Clyde King Jr., 3-1.

CONSOLATION. Mrs. Keeler beat Mrs. Vane, 3-3; Mrs. Vines beat Mrs. Mochrie, 3-1.

SANDLOT GAME. The Moxley Park Tomcats will endeavor to add another victory to their present record of three straight wins when they meet the strong Western Heights team Sunday at Moxley park. Game time is 2:30 p. m.

KINGS OF SPEED IN FINAL TODAY

Gus Schrader, Buddy Callaway Defend Title.

Gus Schrader, world's dirt track champion, and Buddy Callaway, king of all Dixie riders, are expected to retain their titles in a double feature auto race card which will close track activities at the South eastern Fair this afternoon, with time trials starting at 1:30 p. m. and races proper at 2:20 o'clock.

The program calls for nine events, but may even run to 10 or 11 if the management permits the special challenge races which are cropping up among drivers in their grudge arguments, to be placed on the card.

Ten Dixie whizzing firecrackers are slated to jam the throttles in the southern title race, while from the entire field a dozen will be selected through eliminations to "go to town" in the championship final distance race, and as many as 16 may start in the pass-and-out pursuit event.

The potential starters for the big final, according to past performances and season's dope, will be Schrader, Collins, Herb Manges, Callaway, Bayless Levrett, Cotton Grable, Frankie Sands, Harley Taylor, Dave Champeau, Larry Beckett, Shorty Drexler and Red Singleton.

SATURDAY'S ENTRIES. Herb Manges, Detroit, Hispano-Suiza. Buddy Callaway, Miami, Luthy Flston Special. Bayless Levrett, San Diego, Hal Special.

Gus Schrader, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Riverside Special. Larry Beckett, Tampa, Sheppard-Hal. Emory Collins, Regina, Canada, River-Suiza.

Shorty Drexler, Louisville, Ohio, Miller. Harley Taylor, Atlanta, Pharis Special. Pete Craig, Atlanta, Warren Special.

3:45 P. M.—First race, Gulf States best five miles, six fastest cars in trials. First four qualify for finals.

4:15 P. M.—Governor's heat race, five miles, six entries, four qualify for finals.

4:45 P. M.—Championship trophy presentation, won October 10 by Harley Taylor, Atlanta.

5:15 P. M.—Crownation Derby Champeau helmet dash, five miles, 10 entries.

5:45 P. M.—Special challenge match race, three miles, entries to be selected.

6:15 P. M.—Grand Prix Argentinian pursuit race, limited to 18 starters and distance of 20 miles. Driver is eliminated when passed by an opponent. Standing start.

6:45 P. M.—World's championship feature final, distance to be announced, to determine 1937 International Motor Carpent Association international title, 13 starters.

Bulldogs in Shape Except for Stevens

Eastern Dopesters Pick Holy Cross To Win Today; Bill Hartman Georgia's Hope.

By RALPH MCGILL.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 15.—Georgia's great intersectional record in the east will be severely tested Saturday afternoon at Fenway park with Holy Cross as the opposing team.

Georgia starts the game with Harry Stevens, the best kicker, on the sidelines with a sprained back muscle. That much was known before the team left Athens. Bill Hartman must carry the big load, kicking and passing in addition to his running chores.

When he comes out, Oliver Hunnicutt will do the kicking. Harry Mehre was undecided as to his lineup, presenting a tentative one which did not include Hunnicutt.

UNDERRATED. All the dopesters here pick Holy Cross as the winner. It appears that people down south had not included the Crusaders as one of the major teams despite the fact the Crusaders last year defeated Dartmouth, being the only team so to do. And did not lose but one game and that by but one point.

Harry Mehre said tonight, "If we can win this one I will believe we have a good ball club. I look upon this as a very hard game."

The Bulldogs took a workout this afternoon at Fenway park, the home of the Boston Red Sox baseball team. They are in a fighting mood and, with the exception of Stevens, in good shape.

The game begins at 2 o'clock this time, which is 1 o'clock in Atlanta, or was when I left there.

CLARK BATTLES FLORIDA TODAY

Clark University and Florida A. & M. College, two undefeated negro eleven, will clash this afternoon at Ponce de Leon park, at 2 o'clock.

The Atlantans will end a three-day homecoming celebration with the game and between halves Miss Clark University will be crowned.

Florida arrived Friday afternoon by bus. Both coaches last night announced their charges ready for the game but neither would predict the outcome. Florida will, however, enter the game as favorites.

Alabama-Tennessee Game at Knoxville Today Rated Even

TIDE AND VOLS WILL COLLIDE BEFORE 25,000

Cool, Fair Weather Seen for 19th Clash of S. E. C. Rivals.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 15.—(P)—Meeting the 19th time since 1901, the powerful Alabama and Tennessee football teams clash here tomorrow in a Southeastern conference contest with fans rating the outcome a toss-up.

The university—heeding a prediction of cool and fair weather—made arrangements to handle a capacity crowd of 25,000.

Tigers, Rebels Play Tonight.

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 15.—(P)—Louisiana State University and the University of Mississippi, jealous guardians of perfect football records in the current Southeastern Conference title campaign, polished off tonight for their duel under the lights here tomorrow night.

Some 25,000 fans were expected to be on hand for the kickoff at 8:15 p. m. (C. S. T.) with a clear, chilly night in prospect.

Generally considered as two of Dixie's strongest teams defensively, most experts rated L. S. U. favorite by a shade.

Auburn, Maroons Play at Birmingham.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 15.—(P)—The Auburn Tigers and Mississippi State Maroons went through final practice drills today, preparing for their Southeastern conference tilt here tomorrow.

An injury compelled the Tigers to leave Second-String Fullback Pelham Siz at home and bring Charlie Haynesworth, third-stringer. Expert opinion on the outcome was divided.

Greenies Favored To Beat Colgate.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 15.—(P)—Tulane's Green Wave ruled a slight favorite tonight to engulf Colgate's Red Raiders when they clash in their fifth football meeting here tomorrow.

As the vanguard of an anticipated 36,000 spectators trickled into town, the intersectional rivals laid final plans for a battle of power against leggedness.

Coach Andy Kerr, of Colgate, indicated his squad was once more in control of its intricate system of ball-handling.

Lowell (Red) Dawson, Tulane coach, appeared interested mostly in the weather. "This will put zip into the boys," he said of the crisp temperature that greeted his squad on its arrival.

'Little Brown Jug' At Stake Today.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 15.—(P)—With the historic "little brown jug" at stake, Michigan and Minnesota will battle here tomorrow afternoon before 65,000 football fans.

It will be the 28th battle of the series between the schools. Michigan has won 18 games, lost seven and been tied twice, but in the last four years the Gophers have rolled up 100 points to none for the Wolverines in scoring three wins and a tie.

Pitt in New York For Fordham Clash.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(P)—With hopes of breaking the scoreless deadlock that has marked their last two meetings, Pittsburgh's powerful Panthers invade the Polo Grounds tomorrow for their annual clash with Fordham University's football boys.

A capacity crowd of 37,000 is expected to see the two unbeaten teams clash in a game, figured to go a long way toward settling eastern football supremacy. Neither team has been scored upon this season.

Southern Defeats Mercer Bears, 7-0

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 15.—(P)—Birmingham-Southern took advantage of a poor Mercer punt in the third quarter tonight to win 7-0 from the Bears in a Dixie conference contest.

After battling through a scoreless first half, Southern started its touchdown drive in the third period after Tuak booted a short punt out of bounds on the Mercer 32-yard line.

McMichael gained 8 through the Mercer line, then Petrite passed to Proctor who took it to the Mercer 12-yard line. McMichael smashed through the line for 6, then dropped back and passed to Bratcher, who was standing in the end zone.

Bratcher's kick for the extra point was good and the scoring for the night was over.

Petrels Hold Smithies Beat Moccasins To Tie Richmond, 31 to 12

By ROY WHITE.

Tech High flashed another brilliant offensive attack last night to beat Richmond Academy, of Augusta, 31 to 12, at Ponce de Leon park. It was the fifth consecutive Smithie victory and definitely eliminated Richmond from the ranks of championship contenders.

Bobby Pair, one of the fastest halfbacks ever to sprint across Ponce de Leon field, ran wild, scored two of the touchdowns, and helped pave the way for three others.

After piling up a 31-to-0 lead going into the final five minutes of play, Tech High sent a string of reserves into the game. Richmond took advantage of this and tossed two long touchdown passes for their 12 points.

SMITHIE LINE HOLDS.

The Tech High line, which has held like a stone wall, continued its good play.

Tech High scored early in the game when Nichols, on a line buck, broke over tackle for some five yards and a touchdown. A few plays earlier the Smithies had

HAAS, M'CLURE TIED BY GAINES, STIEDLE AT 36TH

Louisiana, Arkansas Teams Play This Morning for Spot in Finals.

By ROY WHITE.

Charlie Yates and Dick Garlington, two East Lake players, this afternoon will battle the winner of the Louisiana-Arkansas morning play-off match for the Southeastern States four-ball championship on the No. 1 East Lake course. It will be a 36-hole final, with the morning round scheduled immediately following the afternoon round of the Louisiana and Arkansas teams.

Yates and Garlington defeated Texas team of Dan Schumacher and Morris Norton, two Dallas players, 5-4, in the semi-finals Friday, as the other match ended all square at 36 and will have to be completed this morning.

In another dramatic finish under the lights of several automobiles packed around the 18th green, Freddie Haas Jr. sent home a 25-foot putt to finish all square with Frank Stiedle and Collins Gaines Jr., of Arkansas.

42-HOLE DRAW.

Haas and Edwin McClure fought Georgia's No. 2 team of Frank Mulhern, Augustus, and Crawford Rainwater, East Lake, to a draw in a 42-hole match Thursday and won out on the 48th Friday morning.

The match was called on account of darkness, after the island hole had been played.

They played six extra holes and Friday morning Haas dropped a long putt at the 48th hole to eliminate the Georgians in a 48-hole match.

Again Friday night the Louisiana team fought back after Georgia's No. 1 team of Dan Schumacher and Morris Norton, two Dallas players, 5-4, in the semi-finals Friday, as the other match ended all square at 36 and will have to be completed this morning.

They will start at No. 1 and the winner will then have to play Georgia's No. 1 team for the championship.

BEST SCORE.

Georgia's team of Charlie Yates and Dick Garlington had the best score of the day in beating the Texas entry of Dan Schumacher and Morris Norton. The East Lake pair was seven under par for the 32 holes played, with the Texas team three strokes under par.

Schumacher and Norton won two of the first four holes, but Yates and Garlington rallied and won five straight, finishing with a best ball of 67, against a 69 for the Texans. On the 17th hole, Norton holed out a 20-foot putt for a birdie, but Yates came right back with a 12-footer to halve the hole, and tied two up at the halfway mark.

Baby 'Gators Beat Auburn Frosh, 13-2

SELMA, Ala., Oct. 15.—(P)—Using a superiority in weight to batter down the resistance of a fighting Auburn freshman team, the baby 'Gators of the University of Florida, punched across two touchdowns in the last quarter to score a 13-to-2 victory here tonight.

Ted Taylor made both touchdowns for the Floridians, going off tackle for the first and then circling his own left end for the second. Smith missed the first try for goal but added the extra point after the second tally.

Casey Stengel Seen As Bee Pilot.

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—(P)—With Bob Quinn, president of the managerless Boston Bees, in Mount Clemens, Mich., on his vacation, the consensus among Boston baseball writers is that Casey Stengel, who worked under Quinn in Brooklyn, is the leading candidate for the Boston managerial job.

When Quinn permitted Bill McKee to accept his Cincinnati offer, he said he would not select the latter's successor for some time.

Browns May Seek To Sign Lazzeri.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—(P)—Although club officials could not be reached, several authoritative sources indicated tonight it is possible the St. Louis Browns may make a bid for the services of Tony Lazzeri as manager or assistant manager of the club.

President Don Barnes and General Manager Bill De Witt, of the Browns, left the city late today. De Witt said he was going to San Antonio, Texas, and it was believed Barnes accompanied him.

Lazzeri Released; Seeks Pilot's Post

"Reliable Sources" Say Tony Will Be Big League Manager in 1938.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(P)—Tony Lazzeri, veteran second baseman of the New York Yankees and batting star of the recent World Series, was given his unconditional release by the world champions tonight.

The announcement of the release said the Yankees learned from reliable sources Tony had been offered a job as manager, coach, or assistant manager, of a major league club for 1938. The Boston Bees and St. Louis Browns are the only two clubs with vacancies for next year. All other teams, with the exception of the Cleveland Indians, have signed managers for next season, and the Tribe is expected to retain Steve O'Neill.

Veteran of 12 years of big league play with the Yankees, and hold-over from the Yanks' era of Babe Ruth, Lazzeri is one of the shrewdest thinkers in the game today.

Lazzeri had announced a few weeks before the 1937 season ended that this year would be his last as a player, and that unless he received a post as manager of a major league club he would retire from the game.

After his brilliant performance during the series, however, Tony admitted he wasn't so sure he would quit. Batting leader of the classic, and flawless fielder in five games, he said he would "think it over" during the winter.

His lifetime average in the big league for 12 years is about .290. He is a veteran of six World Series, with the original Yankees' "murderers' row" in 1926, '27 and '28, in '32 and with the 1936 and '37 clouting crew.

SMART PLAYER.

He was noted most for his master-minding on the field and for his ability as a "clutch" hitter. Until the 1937 season, despite his 290 average, he drove in 1,084 runs for 11 years.

Through the past two years, he has made a gallant comeback, after sports writers had written his baseball obituary after the 1935 season. In 1936, he had one of the biggest batting days in diamond history against the Athletics on May 23, when he hit three homers, two with the bases loaded, and a triple, and drove in 11 runs in one game.

For that performance, as well as for his comeback through the season, the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association voted him "the player of the year."

There was some talk that the offer for Lazzeri may have come from the Philadelphia Athletics. Manager Connie Mack, of the A's, was in ill health for much of the latter part of the 1937 season, and it was said Lazzeri might be signed as a coach or assistant manager to aid the lean veteran in guiding the team next season, in addition to playing second base, where there is a big hole in the A's infield.

Roy Mack, Connie's son and A's vice president, said, however, there's "nothing to" the report, and that the A's had not even considered signing Lazzeri.

John Henry Lewis Loses to Gastanaga

OLYMPIA STADIUM, DETROIT, Oct. 15.—(UP)—Isadoro Gastanaga, a lumbering heavyweight from Cuba, tonight won the decision over John Henry Lewis, light-heavyweight champion of the world, in a non-title 10-round contest.

The champion, unable to keep away from the lefts of Gastanaga, was knocked to the canvas three times.

6,000 Seats Left For Today's Game

Charley Griffin, whose activities on the fleet selling end at Grant field this week will put any one-armed paper hanger's efforts in the shade, wished to advise prospective spectators that 6,000 seats still remain for today's Tech-Duke game.

"It's not yet a sell-out by a goodly margin," Griffin declared yesterday, "and the seats we have left are good ones."

Mr. and Mrs. Bewick Compliment Miss Flora Wright at Club Dance

Miss Flora Wright, of London, England, one of the most attractive and prominent debutantes of the season, was the central figure last evening at the dinner dance given by Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Bewick at the Capital City Club.

The affair marked the initial evening event which will honor the young belle during her winter in Atlanta as a member of the Debutante Club, and will be followed by a series of luncheons, teas and dinners. Last night's event assembled a group of the current club's members and a group of members of the 1936-37 club.

Dinner was served in the grill room and the guests were served at individual tables of six and eight. The Old English tavern atmosphere of the room lent its decorations for the artistic background for the assembled party. Dancing was enjoyed during dinner after which the entire party enjoyed the "Big Apple."

Mr. and Mrs. Bewick were assisted in entertaining by their mothers, Mrs. Roby Robinson and Mrs. E. T. Donnelly. Miss Wright was beautifully gowned in a black tulle trimmed in brilliant and her flowers were orchids. Mrs. Bewick was handsome in a gold satin worn with a shoulder spray of orchids. Mrs. Robinson wore a gown of black crepe with a chiffon beaded top and her flowers were gardenias. Mrs. Donnelly was charming in black velvet trimmed in sequins. Her flowers were gardenias.

Miss Wright shared honors yesterday with Miss Marianna Adair, another popular debutante at the luncheon given by Mrs. John Appleby at her home on Rivers road. Mrs. John O. Chiles assisted in entertaining.

The attractively appointed luncheon table carried out in detail a yellow and white motif. Covers were laid for Miss Wright, Adair, Elkin Goddard, Laura Hill, Dorothy Sanford, Anne Atkins, Roline Adair, Caroline Cooper, Medora Pitts, Wilhelmina Upshaw, Emmakate Vretman, Rosemary Catherine Calhoun and Katharine Newman.

Mrs. J. C. Mellichamp Is in Milwaukee

Mrs. J. C. Mellichamp, national president of Service Star Legion, is in Milwaukee, Wis., attending the convention of this organization. This is the twentieth convention of the Service Star Legion which was known as the War Mother's and business of interest will be transacted, with Mrs. Mellichamp presiding.

Mrs. F. W. Wilthoff, of Fort Valley, and Mrs. A. A. Pearson, representing Atlanta and Fulton County Chapter, accompanied Mrs. Mellichamp. Georgia is proud of its record in Service Star Legion and Mrs. Mellichamp has done much to help the cause, and she is untiring in her work.

This is Mrs. Mellichamp's first year as national president and Georgia Service Star Legion members are proud of her important position in the organization. She served as director of juniors for many years.

Miss McCord Honors Debutante Trio.

A trio of attractive debutantes, including Miss Anne Coppedge, of East Orange, N. J.; Miss Bebe Young and Miss Ida Akers, shared honors at the luncheon given Thursday by Mrs. D. E. McCord. Assisting the hostess in entertaining were Mesdames Cassels Young, William Akers, and Gerald O'Keefe.

Invited to meet the debutantes were Mesdames Amelia Hewlett, Tommie Quinn, Julia Hoyt, Laura Hill, Anne Atkins, Isabelle Boykin, Ethel Erwin, Sarah Lewis and Elizabeth Street.

For Miss Gilham.

Mrs. Pat C. Gilham entertained yesterday at a tressau tea at her home on Maddox drive, as a complimentary gesture to her daughter, Miss Jeannette Gilham, who weds Ralph J. Hancock next Monday.

Assisting Mrs. Gilham were Mrs. Harry Gilham, Mrs. Pat C. Gilham Jr., Mrs. J. W. Hancock, of Marietta, grandmother of the bridegroom-elect; Mrs. Frank Dillard, of Summerville, and Miss Jackie Gilham, Mrs. Lamar Polk and Mrs. P. A. Gilham, all of Alexandria, Va.

are determined to do so. Just to prove to you that I am sincere I will come to your neighborhood meetings if you can have as many as five interested men present.

State President Lauds School

Mrs. Donald Hastings, president of the Garden Club of Georgia and an outstanding authority on horticultural subjects, is enthusiastic in her commendation of The Constitution's Garden School, which opens for a three-day session at the Atlanta Woman's Club next Wednesday. "The Constitution has been a prominent factor in the promotion of garden activities for the state," said Mrs. Hastings, before leaving to attend the National Council of State Garden Clubs in Camden, Maine, "and the garden school it sponsors each fall and spring goes a long way towards fostering interest among the city's many garden clubs. In addition, it offers a splendid opportunity for flower-lovers to hear Mrs. Fletcher Pearson Crown, director of the school, in a series of informative lectures that never fail to appeal."

IF ALL Garden NOTES

By FLETCHER PEARSON CROWN

One thing your front, or entrance area must have, and that is dignity. Have those who pass your home unconsciously gain respect for the owners who live within. Do not try to impress them with the amount of material that you have been able to buy. Do not put on a display of architectural features. Do not display the white chair in which no one ever sits. Do not have a collection of animals or fowls that are so well behaved that they never move from the spot where you placed them. Even though you were able to buy seven ducks, and keep them in a row, do not use them here. Do not use geometrical beds, even though they were designed. That still is not landscape design.

Be careful what you place and where you place it. You may own the property, but the view belongs to the public. Not only display dignity, but be sure of neatness. This means that the lawn should not only be cut, but should be edged, and around the shrubs trimmed. It also means that if you have a hedge, keep it cut. During growing weather this means every 10 days at least. Don't let your hedge gradually get away from you, in other words lose its shape. Don't cut plants all over the lawn. Don't go in for specimens, no matter how lovely each one may be. Don't permit sickly plants to stay on indefinitely. When you find that they will continue to look sickly do away with them, a bonfire is a quick relief to all concerned.

And my dear friends and Garden Club members please do not think for one minute that I am writing all of this for you. I am asking your co-operation to help me put it over to those who evidently have never heard any of us talk, hence their mistakes are not of the heart. You and I have tried so hard to make our neighborhoods beautiful, and now we

Ceianese Crepe Afternoon Frock "Tops" in Charm and Femininity

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK CITY, Thursday.—The Prison Association lunch in Philadelphia yesterday was a most interesting experience. The subject assigned to me was "What the Community Expects of Its Institutions for the Care of Delinquent Women and Children."

On the way up from Washington in the train in the morning, I had the opportunity to see a letter by a very well-informed and able magazine editor written to one of the heads of these institutions. As I read, I realized that my real subject should be, "What These Institutions Might Well Expect From Their Communities."

The speaker preceding me on the program was Justice Justino Wise Poller, of the domestic relations court in New York city. She brought out very clearly how the problems in her court were the result of conditions in the community and that those conditions were the responsibility of the individual citizens of that community. Having once seen how closely related the community conditions are with the problems of the courts in general, it is easy enough to see how closely related are the institutions which receive the individuals sentenced in these courts.

The letter from the editor which I read showed he had little or no knowledge of the subject which, with the best intentions in the world, he was planning to have handled. I felt it might be well if we could start a slogan, "Improve Your Community by Knowing Real Facts About It." For the magazines particularly, I wish we could have a slogan, "Do Not Write Good Stories Based on Imagination. Write Good Stories Based on Facts"—for in this case truth is more interesting than fiction.

When the meeting was over, I went on to Atlantic City. After speaking there I was driven back to Philadelphia and took a late train to New York and reached my apartment about 1:30 a. m.

I had been in only a few minutes when the telephone rang. I was a trifle surprised, for it seemed a late hour for anyone to be calling me. On taking off the receiver, my brother's voice greeted me with, "I heard you come in and I just thought I would find out if you are all right." I assured him I was quite accustomed to going about safely, even in the middle of the night, and he agreed to be in for breakfast by 8:30. We are both on our way to Hyde Park, but he is only going to stay an hour or so. I am, therefore, driving my own car up and he is going up in his, which is not a very sociable arrangement.

I am beginning to understand the lure of Atlantic City more and more. As we ate out dinner last night, I opened the window just to hear the sound of the waves rolling on the beach. Of course, the night I spent there earlier in the autumn was a clear moonlight night, picturesque and romantic. Last night it was cloudy and rainy, but as I looked down the Boardwalk there was charm in the gleam of the lights on the wet pavement and I was sorry that I could not stay longer and wake, perhaps, to sunshine dancing on the ever-moving waves.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

NUTRITION AND COMPLEXION

In medieval physiology complexion was the combination of heat, cold, moisture and dryness which was believed to determine the nature of a body or plant; or the combination of the four bodily humors—blood, phlegm, or mucus, cholera (yellow bile) and melancholy (black bile). Remember, it was not until the time the Pilgrims settled in New England that William Harvey, M.D., discovered the circulation of the blood. The doctrine he began to make known about 1613 but which was rejected as a queer notion by the big noses of the profession of that era—it took fifteen years for the profession to swallow and digest this crazy teaching of Dr. Harvey.

To this day current terms referring to temperament disposition, constitution or complexion reflect ancient concepts long since discarded. For instance sanguine pertains to blood, red, rosy, ruddy, warm, ardent, hopeful, cheerful, phlegmatic means sluggish, calm, lymphatic, lacking energy, unexcitable; cholera means anger, irascibility, and melancholy means gloomy, dismal, sad.

Technically we know that the condition of the skin, and hence the appearance of the complexion, depends on the nutrition and hygiene. But actually millions of credulous folk and their medical advisers still imagine (1) that the skin absorbs medicines, foods, or poisons, (2) that the skin "breathes" through hypothetical "pores" and (3) that the skin is an important excretory organ "eliminating" or "throwing off" waste matter. No recognized authority on physiology supports these quaint notions, although they enjoy vigorous support from certain subsidized medical propagandists.

The real functions of the skin are as follows: (1) It forms a sensory covering for the body, supplied with nerves which convey sensations of pressure, temperature, pain, irritation and so on. (2) The body to make necessary adjustments to changes in the environment. (3) It serves also as a mechanical and chemical barrier of defense. The horny layer of the cuticle mechanically protects against injuries, and the clear skin has an acid reaction which destroys bacteria in a short time, though creams, fats or dirt on the skin may interfere with this self-disinfectant action. (4) The most important function of the skin is the regulation of body temperature, by variations in the blood supply and by variations in the amount of water excreted, as sweat. (5) When exposed to sunlight or even skyshine the skin generates vitamin D, from the chemical or actinic effect in the skin, and this vitamin D is carried through the circulation to the places where it is needed for maintaining good calcium-phosphorus metabolism which is essential for perfect health. (6) The formation of pigment, tan, which, apart from the vitamin D effect may be concerned in the natural healing processes especially the healing of tuberculosis. (7) According to Leonard Hill, foremost English physiologist, exposure of the naked skin to infra-red rays produces reflex shrinking of nasal mucous membranes—opens the nose while exposure by ordinary heat tends to make the nose close up. Open fire or radiant heaters give off infra-red rays.

For Miss Weltner and Mr. Dorsey.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stribling entertained last evening at a buffet supper at their home on Woodward way honoring Miss Callender Weltner and her fiancé, Jasper Newton Dorsey, of Marietta, following the wedding rehearsal. Miss Elizabeth Stribling assisted her parents in entertaining.

The supper table was covered with white lace cloth and the centerpiece was of white chrysanthemums held in a large silver container. Silver candlesticks holding white burning tapers helped to carry out the bridal motif.

Guests were in addition to the honor guests: Misses Eva Bartholomew, Margaret Dancy, Miss Welner, Marian Wagner, Vivian Evans, Callender Hull, Mrs. J. C. Pope, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. W. V. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Lynde, of Atlanta; Miss Phillip Weltner, Judge and Mrs. John T. Dorsey, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Blackman, Ernest Smith, Monk Arnold, Harvey Hull and Phillip Welner.

For Miss Corley.

Miss Lorraine Corley, whose marriage to Charles Wallace Boling takes place today, was honored at a shower given Wednesday by Mrs. Carlton Furell at her home on Katherwood drive.

Present were Mesdames Walter Corley, Roy Riden, B. F. Boling, William Fowler, Mrs. S. C. Sted, Mrs. J. C. Smith, Mrs. S. L. Lynde, Mrs. H. T. Warlick, E. C. Tucker, L. R. Epperson, R. S. Carroll, E. Brown, R. S. McNeil, Carlton Furell and Miss Ouida Garrett.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

"Why is it that men like nitwit women and invariably give them preference over the strong-minded women who know what it's all about?" asks a correspondent in utter disgust. Well, I am not so sure the men like nitwit women for the long pull of matrimony; but definitely they dislike aggressive women who wear pants, make the plans, put the pressure to them and force them to play second fiddle to a female in the matrimonial duet.

When men pass up the smart gals, it is because the gals aren't smart enough to reckon with a man's unalienable right to be cock of the walk, head of the works, master of all he surveys. It's because the gals don't know their psychology well enough to recognize the importance of giving the cock something to crow about, helping him to mount the fence and then cheering his effort.

Just watch the wife who is putting over a fine job. Nine times out of ten she's no nitwit but is clever beyond belief. She has a clear comprehension of the masculine ego. She knows that to get the best out of any man she must refrain from getting the best of him. She understands that the minute she makes him feel inferior to her, that minute his manly pride is in revolt against her. She's aware of the fact that a man is not tender toward a woman who is independent of him nor long in love with one to whom he cannot be hero.

Observe the good wife who has the money in her name—how she constantly disclaims any part in her husband's financial success. She's painting herself out of the picture so he won't be overshadowed. See the educated wife looking and listening admiringly while her less privileged husband murders the King's English. She's giving him confidence in himself despite his limitations. And wildest of all is the woman who knows what she wants to do, knows what she's going to do, yet defers to her husband as though she were waiting breathlessly for word of wisdom to proceed out of his mouth. Every one of them is clever and acceptable to her husband because she does know what it's all about.

The average man is as pleased as pie to have a brainy wife to whom he can point with pride—provided she has brains enough not to put him in the shade of his own vine and fig tree, give driving directions from the back seat of the car, correct his manners, criticize his conversation, take credit for his success or intimidate that he will have gone further and done better had he taken her advice.

He would like to have in his wife what he has in his secretary: a woman that's clever, capable and efficient, one who doesn't try to put anything over on him, or match wits with him; one who stands by ready to give him the benefit of her smartness, when, as and if called for; one who doesn't show him up when he slips, nor criticize him when he fails; one who looks up to him as a hero, head of the works and big boss. Boy how he feeds and fattens on such female admiration! How he accepts the challenge of her flattery! And how he loves her for offering it!

A Whisper of Old Rose.

So when we got a letter from Hester R. asking for some way to make her Hepplewhite dining room furniture look absolutely new and different, we recommended the following prescription: Wallpaper with deep blue ground and a baroque pattern in white and off-white, light green leaves and a whisper of old rose in the flower motif. . . . white woodwork. . . . white pole for draperies that were in a green that is light in tone but not nearly-pastel by. . . . the same tone of light green for the carpet laid to the baseboard. . . . chair seats in that old rose tone picked out of the wallpaper. . . . white alabaster urns on white pedestals for indirect lighting. . . . table accessories of white and light green with accents of deep blue in glassware.

Send a stamped self-addressed envelope to Miss Boykin, in care of The Atlanta Constitution, for the writer's bulletin, "Ideas for Dining Rooms."

Mrs. Perry Entertains Needlecraft Circle.

Mrs. M. G. Perry entertained members of the Needlecraft Club at her home on Sheppard place. Mrs. Perry announced that an all-day sewing for the Needlework Guild will be held Wednesday.

Mrs. De Los Hill gave an account of a recent trip abroad and a visit to England during the coronation. Mrs. E. E. Barry, ways and means chairman, announced gratifying results from the recent bridge party, a rummage sale and a luncheon.

Members present were Mesdames F. J. McDonald, E. E. Barry, C. A. Dyer, E. E. Barry, R. F. Wells, Frank Kopf, R. F. McDonald, L. E. Bush, C. E. Douglas, E. E. Barry, H. B. Longino, J. E. Bigger, J. A. Barbara Bell Fashion

NO. 1419.

SOFTLY DRAPED AFTERNOON FROCK WITH GIRDLING SASH.

The dress posed by the pretty model above, gives expression to the vogue for the softly draped feminine silhouette. The dress of ceianese crepe gains distinction for its full, voluminous sleeves and the soft cowl drape of the front bodice. Accent is given the bustline by pointed insets in a girde line above the belt. The sash is generously cut and wound gracefully as a belt at the waistline. The skirt in this same feminine mood flares gently at the hem.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1419 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, 38. Size 14 (32) requires 4 5-8 yards of 39-inch material.

Fabric: The fabric pictured is black ceianese crepe 39 inches wide. About $1 a yard.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1419 can be purchased for 15 cents.

Please remit in coins, giving your name, address, pattern number and size. Do not send stamps.

FROM PALE TO DEEP.

Watch your blues this season—they're important.

Watch your blues for cues this season. Because they're going to be very important in the fashion picture for fall redecorating. We talked to a brilliant young decorator the other day who told us about a new modern room he's doing in all blues, from pale to deep. And they're turning up combinations that will make your mouth water if you're a weakness for a pretty room.

All the rules are being broken in the new uses of blue, too. Take that all-blue room for instance! Yet we'd better our prettiest silver spoons that it's going to be terribly grand, knowing the kind of work that particular decorator turns out. And take all those unexpected combinations of blues with greens that we're seeing everywhere.

So when we got a letter from Hester R. asking for some way to make her Hepplewhite dining room furniture look absolutely new and different, we recommended the following prescription: Wallpaper with deep blue ground and a baroque pattern in white and off-white, light green leaves and a whisper of old rose in the flower motif. . . . white woodwork. . . . white pole for draperies that were in a green that is light in tone but not nearly-pastel by. . . . the same tone of light green for the carpet laid to the baseboard. . . . chair seats in that old rose tone picked out of the wallpaper. . . . white alabaster urns on white pedestals for indirect lighting. . . . table accessories of white and light green with accents of deep blue in glassware.

Send a stamped self-addressed envelope to Miss Boykin, in care of The Atlanta Constitution, for the writer's bulletin, "Ideas for Dining Rooms."

Barbara Bell Fashion

NO. 1419.

SOFTLY DRAPED AFTERNOON FROCK WITH GIRDLING SASH.

The dress posed by the pretty model above, gives expression to the vogue for the softly draped feminine silhouette. The dress of ceianese crepe gains distinction for its full, voluminous sleeves and the soft cowl drape of the front bodice. Accent is given the bustline by pointed insets in a girde line above the belt. The sash is generously cut and wound gracefully as a belt at the waistline. The skirt in this same feminine mood flares gently at the hem.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1419 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36, 38. Size 14 (32) requires 4 5-8 yards of 39-inch material.

Fabric: The fabric pictured is black ceianese crepe 39 inches wide. About $1 a yard.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1419 can be purchased for 15 cents.

Please remit in coins, giving your name, address, pattern number and size. Do not send stamps.

Miss Sara Austin

Honored at Parties.

Mrs. O. M. Mitchell entertained at a miscellaneous shower at her home on Cascade road Saturday for Miss Sara Austin, whose marriage to Theodore B. McLeod will be solemnized October 17 at the home of the bride-elect. Miss Louise Ham assisted Mrs. Mitchell, and presided over the guest register.

The home was decorated with garden flowers. The bridal motif was featured by wedding bells suspended from the chandelier and from which hung numerous ribbons bearing tiny silver bells which provided the treasure hunt presentation of gifts to the bride-elect. Each ribbon carried a number, corresponding to numbered verses read by each guest, which gave the honoree clues to the location of each gift from the rear of the home to the front. Each guest was given materials for towels, and these were made and presented to the bride-elect.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thornton and Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Thornton honored Miss Austin and Mr. McLeod at dinner at their home in Kenwood Friday. Present were the honor guests, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Austin, Miss Katherine Austin and Charles Austin Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thornton and Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Thornton.

Miss Lou Graham and Mrs. R. L. Matthews gave a miscellaneous shower at their home in Fayetteville for Miss Austin Tuesday. The bride-elect will be central figure at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. C. W. Gardner. She will be assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Guy Gentry. October 15 Miss Helen Castellaw entertains at a dinner for Miss Austin and Mr. McLeod, at the Tavern tea room, followed by a theater party.

West End Civic Club Indorses Mrs. Ritchie.

Civic Club of West End at its recent executive session, indorsed Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, director Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, for recording secretary of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, to be elected at the national convention in Kansas City in April. Also to co-operate with Mrs. J. D. Evans, president of fifth district, in the sale of the Ella F. White cookbook, compiled by Mrs. Ritchie. The club indorsed the "cleaner Atlanta campaign" begun by the Atlanta federation, and a letter was sent to the mayor and chief of the sanitary department, desiring to co-operate with the department for a cleaner Atlanta, especially West End section. A letter to Georgia Board of Health and city board of health pleading support of the movement to stamp out contagious diseases, particularly venereal diseases, and a health certificate for domestic servants.

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

—THE BROTHERS WARNER— HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15.—You have to hand it to the Warner Brothers. From a meat market, a saloon and a pickle factory, they have created a film studio that is the most efficient piece of machinery in all Hollywood.

Unknowns brought to overnight fame at the Warners' 105-acre lot include Errol Flynn and Olivia De Havilland. Leslie Howard made his first screen appearance at this studio in "Outward Bound." Constance Bennett received the highest salary then paid—$30,000 per week for the Warner-produced "Bought." Paul Muni was discovered in "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang," for which failure was predicted before production. "Dangerous" pushed a new personality—Bette Davis—to the stardom foreground and won for her the academy award. The unusual Mauch twins have to thank the Warner Brothers for their existence as an acting pair in "The Princess and the Pauper."

There are some here who accuse the brothers of career wrecking. Warren William was so sure of this he bought out his contract. Key Francis has not been too well served in Warner pictures. But the question arises, would he do better with better material? Jimmie Cagney made some of his biggest hits and biggest flops with the studio. William Powell was given his first chance to go "straight" in "One Way Passage," but did not achieve comedy success until parking his car with M-G-M. Ann Dvorak could say some very nasty things about the studio anent career spoiling—but she should not forget it gave her first recognition in "Scarface."

The brothers have often been accused of "hard" dealing. They reply, "We are businessmen. When we make a contract, we expect it to be fulfilled." And for this reason remain adamant when stars indulge in salary strikes—as Bette Davis discovered to her cost.

One thing is certain, Warners have done more to advance the motion picture industry than all the other studios put together. Achievements of the Warner boys include "The Jazz Singer," the first all-talking picture, "Forty-second Street," the first after-the-deadline million dollar all-around, all-singing musical film; "On With the Show," first technicolor picture. They were the first producers to use the screen for preaching important citizenship lessons—"The Black Legion," exposing the midwest terrorists—"Give Us the Tools We Need," warning of the dangers of the North and South prejudices.

The Warner Brothers have been credited with one ambition—to make money, as much of it as possible in the shortest time possible. Maybe they do, but you have to hand it to them for gambling with a picture like "Louis Pasteur." And now their latest achievement, "The Life of Emile Zola." For this one film alone, the entire existence of the Warner boys is justified.

The strength of the brothers is in unity. They are the most clanish of all the families of film-dom. Benjamin Warner, father of the Warners, was a man of letters and a salesman in Poland, where he was born and married, and the birthplace of several of his many children, including Harry (present president of the company) and Albert (one of the vice presidents).

Harry is the financial genius of the company. It was he who indorsed the public to invest in 500 theaters and equipment for the showing of the new talking pictures. A few years ago, his daughter, Doris, married Director-Producer Mervyn Le Roy. His only son died in 1932 from an infected tooth extraction.

Benjamin Warner came to the United States in 1888, started as a shoe salesman in Baltimore and was operating two shoe stores. Later, he moved with his family to West Virginia, opened a general store. Finding himself with $30,000 in the bank, Benjamin migrated to London, Ontario, and invested his savings in a fur store—which failed completely. The birth of Jack Warner, youngest of the sons, was slight compensation. Back to Baltimore and Harry and Albert helping their father in the shop. Another period of wandering ended in Youngstown, Ohio, where Benjamin lived for the next 30 years.

Sam Warner, the third son, was the first to steer the family toward motion pictures, with the film, "The Great Train Robbery," which cost $150. It was shown first in Niles, Ohio. One sister sold tickets, one played the piano. Jack Warner, still in short pants, sang illustrated songs. Sam worked the projector. Father and Harry were more interested at this point in their meat market, pickle and saloon ventures. "The Great Train Robbery" netted $300 the first week. And the whole family moved in. The film migrated to New-castle, Pa., to the first Warner theater, a nickelodeon.

The exchange business, being bought out (actually forced out) by the General Film Company. This sale netted both Harry and Albert $50,000 each. Harry invested his money in a huge butcher shop in Youngstown and Albert went to New York. But pictures were now in their blood. They started making "Warner features" in Brooklyn.

Jack L. Warner, the vice president in charge of production, now lives in Beverly Hills in one of the most beautiful houses in the picture colony. H. M. Warner lives in New York, but spends much time in Hollywood. Albert Warner is in New York. Sam died in 1927—48 hours before "The Jazz Singer" was shown on Broadway. Three sisters live in or near Hollywood, one in New York.

A few years ago Harry Warner was included with the 50 men who control the business future of America.

I repeat: You've got to hand it to the Warners.

ANY WOMAN CAN WIN LOVE IF SHE REALLY WANTS IT

Let's be honest. For a woman, love is the difference between a full life and a lonely one.

So why let the psychology of love remain a mystery? Why not cultivate the spark of magnetism which inspires love?

With a little practice you can blend subtly into your personality the hundred and one little wiles which appeal to men.

Know the art of seeming absorbed in the man you're with, wherever you are. Don't glance around while he talks or interrupt him with comments on others. By keeping your eyes and your thoughts on him, establish that feeling of "we two and the world outside."

Do you recognize the moods when a man needs admiration? Be the one to buck him up, to restore his confidence in himself—he comes naturally to think of you as a life inspiration.

Often a girl gets no farther than the "good friend" stage because she lets herself be "routine." Be different. Try a new way of fixing your hair, wear a dress unlike any others you have, put on a new mood. For men respond to variety, a bit of spice.

From our 40-page booklet, "Success in Love and Marriage," get advice from a well-known psychologist on ways to win love; to make a happy marriage; problems of the modern girl.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, SUCCESS IN LOVE AND MARRIAGE, to Home Institute, Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Your Figure, Madam

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

WEIGHT INCREASE EASY TO CHECK IF YOU START IN TIME.

It's my observation that the famous beauties don't have weight problems. They set a strict limit on weight fluctuation and never permit the scales to vary more than three to five pounds comprising this narrow margin.

You might think a five-pound gain is not worth noticing, but women who value their figure take it as a warning. They know that a persistent gain, however slight, is a sign of unwise eating habits or too little exercise, and they act accordingly.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(P)—Railroad obligations were hammered lower in a sinking bond market today. Losses of 1 to 3 points were the rule, with the averages for 20 carrier liens showing the sharpest break in several years.

While new lows were recorded in all groups in the domestic corporate list, foreign dollar issues were marked by a sharp advance in Italian, Japanese and Polish loans.

United States government issues after early indecisiveness, turned up a trifle and at the close ranged up 32 to 34 points. Losses, which were few and scattered, were held to 2-32 of a point.

With publication of a crop of railroad earning reports indicating reduced profits, the carrier group headed down. Turnover was heavy. The Associated Press average for 10 rails dropped 1.3 points to 79.5, the lowest level since June 1935, and the sharpest drop in several years.

The averages for 10 industrial broke 4 of a point to 99, while 10 utilities slumped .1 of a point to 92.9, the lowest point in more than two years.

worse. But nowhere can I find a shred of hope. They all say Holy Cross will win the football game at Fenway park on Saturday afternoon.

WELL, I DON'T KNOW.
I just don't know. It is a bit sad to have one's mind made up in advance and then to have all the weight of evidence on the other side.

Holy Cross did defeat Dartmouth last year. And Holy Cross was the only team to defeat Dartmouth. They have a good, tough football team. There is no doubt about that.

They talk about "Bullet Bill" Osmanski. And no doubt "Bullet Bill" Osmanski is a great back. He will be one of the lads looked upon as an all-American prospect. But, we've got the ball on our team, too. I refer to Mr. Bill Hartman. His nickname is not nearly as good as Mr. "Bullet Bill" Osmanski's. They call him "Big Bill." But I wouldn't take Mr. "Bullet Bill" in exchange for Mr. "Big Bill."

They say that Mr. Butch Cahill, who does the forward passing for Holy Cross, is more accurate than the colonials who stopped the British at Bunker Hill by waiting until they saw the whites of their eyes.

We are crippled by the loss of Harry Stevens who will not play. But just the same, I think our "Big Bill" passes very well indeed.

As a matter of fact, my sectional spirit is aroused. This morning a gentleman narrowly escaped being punched right in the back. He was a photographer and he tried to have some of the football players holding on to a chain to illustrate a chain gang feature.

We told him we much preferred even a Georgia chain gang to a life in Boston. This chastened the gentleman, perhaps, but even so he perhaps should have been punched right in the nose.

Our boys do not seem to be afraid. I looked at them carefully this morning. They look a bit small. They are not as large as the crusaders of Holy Cross. But I like them just the same. I am stubborn that way.

I still think Georgia is going to win. I think we will pin their ears back in a neat lot. And when they do we are all going to have a Roston tea party.

AT FENWAY PARK.
The game is to be played at Fenway park which is the home of the Boston Red Sox. The Red Sox are the answer to all the people who are saying that baseball is ruined because the Yankees have too much money.

Tom Yawkey has been trying to buy a team to win a pennant in Fenway park and has met with no success at all. He has spent a cool two or three millions and you will find no pennants flying from the pole at Fenway park. It requires much more than money to win a pennant.

Incidentally a baseball park is one of the worst places in the world from which to view and cover a football game. The press benches are terrible. But is any one interested in that?

THE HARVARD CLUB.
Tonight your correspondent is due at the Harvard club for dinner with Dr. Merrill Moore. Dr. Moore was a freshman at Vanderbilt University when your old partner was being informed by the faculty that it really was not necessary for him to return to school.

He is now one of the best known physicians in America and despite the fact he was born on a farm near Nashville, Tenn., he has developed a slight Boston accent.

In addition to being one of the best known men in his profession he also has published two volumes of poetry which have met with very fine success. I remember him best as a fine young sophomore who went around writing very good sonnets. He used to telegraph sonnets to a young lady. It is a bit terrifying to find him looking upon your old partner as perhaps a case to investigate.
